Low Wages, Low Profits.
Uncle Sam's Big Cash Day.
Two Millions a Week.
Normal Spine Week.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LITTLE BY little the human race is educated by its own mistakes. The big war taught all nations that war does not pay. It killed twenty millions, was followed by the "Spanish influenza" which killed eight or ten millions more, and cost two hundred and fifty billions of dollars.

Dictators, and the foolish people themselves, may start other wars. But the thinking men of big finance will not want them started. They cost too much.

AS WE LEARN from war so we learn from financial and business depressions like the one now worrying us.

This depression teaches big men that THEIR prosperity depends on good and constant wages for the little man. Seven or eight million men, on the average, have been idle for 28 months.

They have failed to earn nearly three billions of dollars that they would have earned normally. And that sum has been deducted from the country's normal spending, not counting the profit that employers might have made on the work and wages of the idle men.

THOSE THAT say "you cannot have the old prosperity until you readjust and deflate wages" should think again.

If you "deflate" wages you will deflate and postpone prosperity.

Earnings of workers in this country, under good conditions, amount to about sixty billoins a year.

Cut wages and salaries 20 per cent and you will cut earnings and SPENDING POWER BY $12,000,000,000. What would happen to prosperity, to automobile makers, and others, if that were done.

DEPRESSION, or no depression, it is a busy world. Today Uncle Sam's cash turnover will amount to $3,100,000,000, biggest one day's cash transaction since the war, when we were shoveling out billions with light hearts.

OSTEOPATHS ALL over the world will devote this week to "the normal spine," concentrating attention on the bodies of children in schools and before the school age.

School authorities, Boy Scout organizations, women's clubs and all others should co-operate in this work. Thousands of children have spinal curvature that could be straightened, their lives thus made happier.

OSTEOPATHS today take the place of doctors, and doctors cannot do what osteopaths do, because they haven't learned that in the human body the skeleton is as important as the steel frame in a skyscraper. It is as dangerous to have a bone pinching a nerve as it would be to have an iron beam cutting off an electric light wire, or a water pipe.

DETROIT IS producing cars at the rate of 400,000 a month, dealers demanding more cars. Michigan's Department of Labor and industry reports increased automobile payrolls of $2,000,000 a week.

GERMANY IS building a plane to go up 10 miles—even at that height, we shall know little about the air ocean above us. We are like deep sea fish that cannot go near the surface. If they came to the top, they would burst, because of diminished pressure. If he went to the top of our air ocean, blood vessels in our lungs would burst, and we should die, long before reaching the top, for lack of oxygen.

However, we shall reach the top some day, in air-tight flying compartments, with oxygen supplied under normal surface atmosphere pressure. Thus far we have risen to only one-fiftieth part of the atmosphere's depth, and like the fishes, in their depths, we think we are on top of the world. We are mistaken.

MR. ERNEST HOFTYZE, able young newspaper business man, who promotes the success of the Boston Record, was asked yesterday, "What are you doing?" His reply is recommended to young and old men, as a good 1931 recipe.

"I TAKE CARE OF MY HEALTH, SAVE MY MONEY, AND WORK LIKE—"

FRENCHMEN HAVE staying powers. On Saturday last Briand had been in public life 25 years, 11 times prime minister of France, holding 36 portfolios, in 25 cabinets.

Nobody else in the world has that record. Working powerfully for peace, Briand says:

"Sooner or later governments and people will realize that it is more economical to understand each other than to devour each other."

Mysterious Blast and Fire Reported; Boats Rush To Aid in North Atlantic

BULLETIN.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 16.—(AP.)—Marooned on a loose ice pack in the North Atlantic, surviving members of the crew of an unidentified vessel, believed to be the sealing ship Viking, were drifting seaward with the floes off White Bay, messages reaching the government from that point said today. The vessel had burned to the water's edge, the message said.

International News Service.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 16.—Fragmentary reports, as yet unconfirmed, were received here today that the sealing ship Viking, engaged in making a motion picture at sea, was "blown up" today by a mysterious explosion.

The ship carried a crew of 150 persons, commanded by Capt. Abram Kean, Jr. Among those known to have been on board were Varick Frissel, motion picture producer; Harry Sargent, actor, and A. E. Penrod, cameraman, all of New York.

"SHIP IN FLAMES"

News of the explosion came from the wireless operator at Horse Island in White Bay, who reported to the minister of fisheries that the noise of the explosion had been heard and the ship sighted in flames.

All other ships known to be in the vicinity have reported their positions. The Viking is the only one known to be in the immediate waters where the explosion was heard. Sealing ships reported seeing a number of men on the ice.

The government is rushing two vessels—the Sagona and the tug Foundation Franklin—to the rescue. The ice is open and the wind is off-shore.

VETERAN EXPLORER

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—Varick Frissell, of New York, whose chartered sealer Viking was reported today to have exploded at sea, has conducted explorations along the Labrador coast for several years. He is a Yale Graduate and a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society.

It was believed in motion picture circles in New York that Frissell was in the North making another picture. Last year he exhibited "The Silent Enemy" and the year before "Vikings of the North," both of which were made with native characters in the Hudson's Bay country.

GORDON GETS BANKING POST

Governor Orders Tightening Of Vigilance to Protect Depositors; Raps Bell Case

By ED PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, March 16.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today appointed Dr. William D. Gordon secretary of banking to succeed Peter G. Cameron, resigned, and launched what he termed a new policy of vigilance, the first duty of which he said, would be "to protect depositors by preventing the closing of banks rather than permitting the institutions to go so far that they have to be closed."

He also promised to "clean up the building and loan situation in this state."

SCORES PROCEDURE

Inferentially scoring past procedure in the bank department, the Governor in a formal statement declared:

"When it is discovered that officers of any bank have been guilty of criminal acts under the banking laws, as in the case of the John Bell bank failure, they must not be continued in office."

The new banking commissioner is from Drexel Park, Delaware County. He was named first deputy two months ago and also served in the previous Pinchot administration.

The Governor's statement asserted:

"The time to act is when reports to the Department of Banking begin to show that deposits may be menaced."

BUILDING AND LOAN

The Governor then called attention to the building and loan situation in the state, saying:

"At present the most important task before the Department of Banking is to clean up the building and loan situation in this state. Building and loan associations are the poor man's investment. They are often the main reliance of the small home owner. As such they must be most closely guarded. Only citizens of known responsibility will be approved as directors and officers of these associations."

NEW LEADS BROADEN QUIZ

Other Departments Facing Investigation; Criminal 'Aspects' Are Considered

New developments of "utmost importance" were being investigated by special investigators of the Citizens' Committee, it was learned reliably today, as the scope of the investigation of the Department of Supplies broadened.

The nature of the latest developments has not been disclosed, but it is understood that they are independent of the dual audit now in progress, and constitute an extension of the Citizen's Committee's investigation into other departments.

County detectives also are working on certain phases of the investigation. William H. Colvin, assistant district attorney, said. Mr. Colvin, however, refused to indicate upon what lines they were working.

LEGAL ASPECTS

It was also learned that consideration is being given the legal aspects of alleged irregularities, including criminal conspiracy and malfeasance in office.

High legal authorities said today that a possible basis for charges of conspiracy were found in the opinion handed down in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Haynes, et al., 15 Philadelphia reports, page 356, which reads:

"A combination to compel the city to pay higher for its labor and materials than it would pay if there was no combination to prevent bidding, is a conspiracy."

LANG URGES QUIZ

Formal request for a public investigation of the Department of Public Works was made this afternoon by Director Edward G. Lang. Lang made his request in a letter which was read in Council. He wrote:

"Public accusations have been made against the Department of Public Works for inefficiency, carelessness and graft in the department. These are very serious accusations, and in the interests of the good name of the City of Pittsburgh, and the personnel of my engineering staff, an opportunity and a hearing should be given to substantiate or refute the accusations made.

"I trust that you will receive the information that has been publicly offered to you and that you will set a time for a public hearing, giving us sufficient opportunity and notice of the charges in detail, so that my engineering staff may be prepared, in full measure to meet these accusations."

Lang's letter and a letter from Henry Oliver Evans, former city controller, demanding a public investigation of the Department of Public Works, was referred to the finance committee without comment. The finance committee will meet tomorrow. Evans in his letter charged contract irregularities.

Council also received and filed two communications from the Duquesne Heights Board of Trade and the Brotherhood of Carpenters, praising the efforts of the Allied Boards of Trade in demanding a public investigation of the Department of Supplies.

Records of the proceedings of City Council are being scanned by members of the League of Women Voters interested in the business methods followed in numerous ordinances to pay city debts.

This search also is independent of the double audit of the books of the Department of Supplies.

In addition to the purchase of rugs and chandeliers without bids Council has approved many

GIRL IN HYMIE'S CASE SEIZED

"Akron Mary" Outland, 27, who had been sought for a month as a material witness in the murder of William E. Potter, former Cleveland councilman, was in custody today and had been taken back to Cleveland, proclaiming she had nothing to fear.

Companion of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, indicted for the murder, "Akron Mary" was arrested yesterday in a North Side rooming house, where detectives say she had been hiding, and was motored to Cleveland today.

Cleveland detectives reported that on the trip back Mary said:

"Hymie's innocent. He wouldn't harm a flea."

It was said that an underworld trip brought Mary's arrest. Taken into custody at the same time were two men who police say have been helping Mary to hide. They

AUTOIST FOUND AFLAME IN PARK

A man whose clothes were afire was found staggering helplessly in the woods of Highland Park this afternoon, and a few feet distant his automobile was going up in flames.

The man, said to A. M. Bonn, 42, a window-shade salesman, of Mirror street, Squirrel Hill, was rushed to Pittsburgh Hospital in critical condition, and was not expected to recover.

To the Rev. Luther A. Horn, evangelist, of 6624 Frankstown avenue, Bonn explained:

"I was in my car and lit a match to smoke a cigaret. Then the fire started."

It was Horn who discovered the man. Horn was driving in Serpentine Drive when he saw the burning auto. He said:

"Then I saw in the woods about 50 feet distant a figure on fire. The flames were so great that I couldn't tell whether it was a human being. When I reached him some little boys had got there. We got him to roll over and over on the ground and in that way put out the flames. Then I went to call the hospital and police. When I got back I asked him what had happened, and he told me about the match and cigaret."

It's Income Tax Day; Other Merry Occasions Near

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Today's the last day you can pay your income tax and tomorrow's St. Paddy's day.

Holidays are coming fast and thick. Saturday is the first day of spring when the birds will try to out-twitter the Wickersham committee.

Progressive is a man who was fired by the old mossbacks for being too conservative.

Therefore he hates the parent body like a goitre hates its neck. His star of hope is election day and his favorite hymn of hate is: "Give Me Something to November You By."

Michael Susko, 17, of 20 Boyd street, was dead today, and police were searching the countryside for three men, one believed to have been wounded, as a result of a robbery at the New Penn barbecue, in Library road, Bethel Township, at 5 a. m. yesterday. Susko, county detectives said, was shot to death while attempting to climb out of a window of the place with the cash register which he had been unable to open.

It was the third time in seven months that the New Penn had been burglarized. Louis Passarello, owner, left the place about midnight. His brother, Alex, was in charge, and with him were

DESK BUYING SHOWS LOSS

Carelessness in buying for the city even from low bidders is charged in a comparison of orders for similar office equipment placed during the early part of last year by the Board of Education and by the city Department of Supplies.

The Board of Education purchased 150 desks from a downtown concern about April 15, 1930, for $31.75 each. Just previous to that, the city had bought 50 of the same desks for $44 each.

These figures indicate a buying loss of about 40 per cent.

The company which received the city order was the low bidder.

Chaplin Gets Cake Einstein Saved; Talks Economics

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

BERLIN, March 16.—(Universal.)—Prof. Albert Einstein cut a piece of cake for Charlie Chaplin—a piece of the birthday cake he had saved 24 hours for Chaplin's visit. Charlie thereupon made himself at home and the two had tea together.

Einstein clebrated his fifty-second birthday Saturday, but refused to touch the cake, presented him by the Hamburg-American Steamship Line until Charlie came yesterday. Chaplin was accompanied by Sir Philip Sassoon, former British cabinet officer.

Chaplin stayed for tea, for three hours discussing the unemployment problem with Einstein. So fervid was the discussion, said Sir Philip, that "when I left the room, Chaplin was walking up and down, his arms beating the air."

Mrs. Babcock, wearing a fur coat, met the Commissioner at the station and hastened him to their home where Babcock changed into winter clothing.

At his office, Babcock explained through his secretary, Ben Anderson, that the first signs of winter greeted him at Steubenville this morning. He had bought his summer clothes while vacationing in Palm Beach.

FRIENDS MAY BALK COURT ACTION

Utility Probers Scan Case Of Recalcitrant; House Group to Invite Schwab

HARRISBURG, March 16.—Former Congressman John R. Farr, of Wilkes-Barre, may be on his way to jail tonight for refusing to name two friends before the Senate committee investigating utilities.

The committee, demanding that he tell who told him public service commissioners had settled the Scranton Spring Brook Water Service rate before the consumers presented the objections, may be divided over the issue due to politics and so vote him.

PINCHOT SUPPORTER

Farr spoke for Gov. Pinchot in the last campaign, declaring in his talk that a Scranton banker had in his possession a letter from New York securities people, advising that increases in water rates were assured by the commission.

Farr refused to give the names of the bankers who possessed or knew of the letter. He has been held tentatively in contempt for 10 days.

Tonight some anti-Pinchot senators on the committee declared Farr will be taken into Dauphin County Court unless he delivers.

Farr admits his situation is "serious." Some loopholes may be found in the subpena or the law. The Senate committee's course will be settled at a meeting late today.

Meanwhile the House committee expected to authorize a letter inviting Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem Steel head, and O. W. Saylor, mayor of Johnstown, to appear and answer Edward McCloskey's charges that the steel company and its subsidiary utilities dominate Johnstown, its officials and institutions.

The Senate investigation, while intimating much and revealing little, has sparked some action in public utility legislation, but already forecasts are being made the Legislature will adjourn without passing any remedial measures.

SPECIAL SESSION TALK

When the General Assembly reconvenes tonight the normal adjournment date will be only a month away and speculation was current as to the probable length of the present session. There was even talk of a special session if Gov. Pinchot's plans to abolish the Public Service Commission fail.

Several administration bills may go into the House this week. Among those moving ahead for consideration and second reading are:

Senator James J. Coyne's bill fixing the salary of Pittsburgh's city controller at $8,000, an increase from $6,000.

Two of Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr.'s, bills, one to provide a method to determine the time to elect national delegates to party conventions, the other to change the time for filing petitions for nominations with the county commissioners. Both bills simply make corrections in dates to standardize the time.

Senator Harris' resolution permitting absentee citizens to vote.

DEATH PENALTY FOR 3 UPHELD

The conviction of Frank Powell, Frank Cantilla and Carl Crow, in Cambria County Criminal Court at Johnstown, charged with the murder of Louis Hoffman, July 14, 1928, was upheld in a decision handed down by the Supreme Court sitting here.

Hindu Women's Ring Bout Stirs Sisters

MADRAS, India, March 16.—(AP.)—Feminine India is literally up in arms against Kamala Bai and Sita Bai, who face social ostracism and disgrace because they engaged in a six-round fight at the White City Carnival here yesterday.

That Hindu women, the most conservative of all their eastern sisters, should invade the boxing ring has shocked and pained even India's men, who for centuries have kept wives and daughters in strict seclusion behind the veil.

Bank Robbers Drop Bucket Of Cash, Flee

RIDGELEY, Md., March 14.—(AP.)—Three yeggmen, fleeing as a fire alarm was sounded following the robbery of the Bank of Ridgeley here early today, dropped a coal bucket filled with $800 in silver. The money was recovered by pursuers.

The fire alarm was sounded after the discovery of the robbery by a nearby resident.

MAIL OFFICIAL FALLS DEAD

William Lamb, 62, of 68 South Euclid avenue, Bellevue, fell dead at Penn avenue and Sixth street last night. At the Allegheny General Hospital death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

PINCHOT MUM ON NEW JUDGE

HARRISBURG, March 16.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today said the appointment to the Supreme Court to succeed the late Justice Sylvester B. Sadler, and the appointment of any new members of the Boxing Commission were remote.

Philadelphia liberals last week advanced the name of Superior Judge William B. Linn, of Philadelphia, as a candidate for the judgeship.

Other candidates have been recommended by their friends, among them Judge James B. Drew, of Pittsburgh; District Attorney John Monaghan, of Philadelphia; Judge Albert W. McDade of Delaware, and Judge William M. Parker, of Franklin.

That Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pittsburgh, sees beyond the smoke-lined horizon to the upper court is no secret, but his mayor's job is for three years, and the difficult job of running next September for election after serving out the appointment to the Supreme Court has been a discouraging factor. It has been suggested also that one of Allegheny County's judges, one of the liberals, or O. K. Eaton, attorney of Pittsburgh, are in line for a judgeship and may play a role in the shifting when it comes.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., March 16.—(AP.)—Injuries she received when an automobile in which her grandson was a passenger struck her caused the death early today of Mrs. Mary C. Payne, 75. The woman was struck at a street intersection while on her way to church yesterday.

MAYOR WALKER DEFIES CRITICS ON INQUIRY

'All Nonsense,' He Says in 'Phoned Approval of His Aide's Attack on Probe

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—The New York Times today quoted Mayor Walker as saying, in a telephone interview from Palm Springs, Cal., that he approved a statement issued by Charles F. Kerrigan, his executive assistant, criticising proposals for an official investigation of the mayor.

Kerrigan's statement said the investigation move was inspired by persons trying to prevent disclosures about the closed bank of United States.

'ALL NONSENSE'

The mayor said:

"I know that the fundamentals of the city government, schools, transit, finance, the hospitals are all right. I have no doubt about that.

"Let them have their day. When I can get back and look them in the eye I will answer all their questions. It's all nonsense, this talk about investigation. I don't know where it comes from.

"It's all right with me if a group of preachers wants to attack me for being fond of laughter and for wisecracking. I was elected mayor twice, and I never made any deception about that."

UNITE IN QUIZ DEMAND

Meanwhile united support of the same resolution by all civic bodies demanding an investigation of the city government was advocated today by W. Kirkland Macy, Republican state chairman.

Macy said that the various movements should be co-ordinated in a drive for legislative intervention and that Samuel Seabury, already named to hear charges of nonfeasance against District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, should be named special counsel.

New York's pulpits resounded yesterday with denunciations of City Hall and pleas for a house-cleaning. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of Community Church, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of the Free Synagogue, who are drafting specific charges of incompetence against the mayor, carried their campaigns to their parishioners.

BARGAIN RUSH CALLS POLICE

Eight policemen and several private detectives were forced to hold back crowds of bargain hunters who today stormed the Campbell Company's store, 327-333 Fifth avenue. The store, now in the hands of receivers, is liquidating its entire stock of over $500,000 after being in business for 60 years in the same location.

Police had to close the store four or five times when it became swamped with customers.

P. D. Campbell, a member of the firm, said:

"It is with great regret that after 60 years of service to the people of Pittsburgh, the decision to liquidate our entire stock has become necessary. The loyalty of our salespeople, buyers and executives has been exceptionally fine during this crisis."

ENTER BY WINDOW

At 5 a. m. the lights were extinguished and the men preparing to leave, they told Deputy Coroner James E. Carroll and County Detectives Michael Stabile and David Carlin, who investigated the shooting, when an automobile containing four men drove up close to the building and the men peered through a window.

The men then drove away, but returned a short time later. Two of them left the car, circled the building, then crawled through one of the front windows.

The detectives said that the employes told them Susko attempted to open the cash register, and that when he was unable to do so, took it under his left arm and started toward the window, his companion walking ahead of him. In his free hand he carried a revolver.

5 SUSPECTS RELEASED

Micco, crouching in a corner with an Army rifle, and Alex Passarello with a revolver, called to them to halt, and when they failed both opened fire, they told the detectives. Susko fell dead. His companion staggered, but escaped through the window, was dragged into the car by the two waiting men and hurried away.

Detectives searching the hills arrested five men as suspects but released them a short time later.

PRESIDENT READY FOR CRUISE

Final Arrangements Made For Hoover's Voyage on Battleship to Caribbean

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The White House hummed today as final arrangements were made for President Hoover's battleship cruise of the Caribbean, upon which he will embark Wednesday or Thursday.

Secretary Lawrence Richey and Capt. Russell Train, naval aide, scanned accommodations aboard the U. S. S. Arizona to ascertain to how many the party must be limited, and Boris, the President's valet, was arranging a summer wardrobe for the 10-day jaunt through southern seas.

GUESTS LIMITED

As the trip of the Arizona, just reconditioned, is a "shake-down" cruise and the Navy desires a full crew aboard, reservations for guests, secret service men and newspapermen are to be limited. It was considered probable Secretary of War Hurley, who has jurisdiction over Porto Rico, would go along, also Secretary of the Interior Wilbur. Richey and Train will be aboard, also Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician.

The cruise is to be a stag affair. Mrs. Hoover has made plans to visit her son, Herbert, Jr., in Asheville, during the President's absence.

Mr. Hoover will occupy the quarters of Capt. Charles Seymour Freeman, skipper of the Arizona, consisting of a stateroom, messroom and bath.

CUBAN VISIT DEFERRED

It is planned to stop only at Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Although Mr. Hoover, due to lack of time, had to forego visiting Cuba on the return from his South American good will tour while president-elect, conditions there are so unsettled it has been thought best to repay President Machado's visit to Washington at a later date.

The privacy Mr. Hoover will enjoy aboard the Arizona will enable him to map out the eight speeches he has scheduled for April, May and June, which will be regarded in many quarters as the opening of his campaign for re-election.

This is particularly true of his address June 15, at Indianapolis, before the Indiana Republican State Editorial Association. There he may make statements bearing on the next campaign.

TRY SUBSTITUTE PRISONER CASE

ERIE, Pa., March 16.—(AP.)—The story of an alleged conspiracy in which another man was "substituted" for a prisoner charged with liquor smuggling was to be told in Federal Court here today.

The case is to be tried before Judge Nelson McVicar and involves James Patrone, or Petrone, 40, alias Joseph Warner, alias Joseph Jarvis, Buffalo, N. Y., the alleged "substitute," who entered a plea of guilty Saturday. Attorney Samuel Y. Rossiter, son of Judge U. P. Rossiter, president judge of Erie County; Joseph A. Donovan, Erie automobile dealer; Sam Beals and Lester Black.

Patrone was charged with taking the place as a prisoner for Stanley Wells, of Colburg, Ont., who had been arrested on a smuggling charge. The government contends Wells was captured along with Beals, when the Coast Guard overtook a rum runner late in September, 1929.

When the two men appeared in Pittsburgh in 1929 the government contends, Patrone substituted for Wells. It was not certain today whether he will be used as a government witness.

Widow, Ending Life, Asks Dog Be Buried With Her

Found dead in bed early yesterday with a bottle of poison near her, Mrs. Elsie Beetham, 50, of 193 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, left a note in which she directed disposition of her pets, a dog and two canaries.

Mrs. Beetham, a widow, and reputed to have been wealthy, declared in her note that she had lost a considerable sum in the stock market. Her body was found by Mrs. Belva Carey, of Phillipsburg, a visitor in the house.

Neighbors said she had appeared normal and happy the night before. They could not understand her suicide, they said.

Her note said in part:

"Get Dr. Sutton to chloroform Trixie (the dog). I was going to do it myself, but she looked at me so pitifully when I was trying to get the bottle to her nose, and she fought so, I could not do it. But I want her soul and spirit at my feet. Trixie has had many sick spells lately, and can't live much longer anyhow. Please do this for me. Chloroform Trixie and put her in the casket at my feet, and bury her with me."

She expressed the desire that the canaries be given to someone who would give them a good home.

Mt. Royal Cemetery authorities, in which the woman's body was scheduled to be interred, today said they would not permit the burial of the dog's body there.

Coolidge Sees Canada's Self Sufficiency Gaining

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 16.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

One development after another emphasizes the growing self-sufficiency of Canada. At the opening of Parliament when the acting chief justice, Lyman P. Duff, represented King George in the absence of the new governor general, the Earl of Bessborough, the speech from the throne was delivered for the first time by a Canadian.

Mr. Coolidge

The spectacle must have touched the pride of the people of the flourishing and resourceful dominion. It was a recognition of their increasing importance in the empire. A proposal has been made to have a governor general who is a Canadian citizen. No doubt that will come. It would be natural for a country of 10,000,000 people with a per capita wealth above that of the United States to supply its own contact with the crown.

Politically Canada looks to England. Economically she looks to us. We have invested there about one-ninth of her national wealth, while England has about one-fourteenth. Her trade with us is three times larger than her trade with the United Kingdom. Her own foreign investments are large. She has financial interests all over the Western Hemisphere. Because we represent the same economic aims we rejoice in the success of Canada.

Wilkins' Under-Ice Submarine Leaves Port

STARTS 1ST LAP OF TRIP TO POLE

Jules Verne's Grandson to Christen Strange Craft Bound for Exploration

Universal Service.

CAMDEN, March 16.—The Nautilus — symbolizing a dream of conquest more magnificent even than Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea"—today will put out from this port.

The Nautilus, with Sir Hubert Wilkins, world renowned explorer in command, begins the first leg of a 20,000-mile journey that will carry her to the farthest reaches of the vast frozen seas on top of the world—mankind's "last frontier" of adventure.

SEEK SCIENCE TREASURE

Unlike Capt. Nemo, of Verne's tale, Sir Hubert is no foe of human society, but hopes to bring back from his voyage under the ice to the North Pole, scientific treasures and trophies of immeasurable value.

Verne's Nautilus indeed is thoroughly outdone by Sir Hubert's boat, which bears the same name, and which will be christened March 24 by Verne's grandson, Jean Jules Verne.

DRILLS TO CUT ICE

Verne's Nautilus was trapped underneath the Antarctic ice, but Sir Hubert proposes to avoid that peril by electric drills through which he will cut a hole to the outer air and safety.

The Nautilus of Sir Hubert and his intrepid company of scientists and explorers will bounce sound waves off the bottom of the Polar Sea, revealing how deep it is. They will find out whether the top of the world is a huge crater, out of which the moon might have been whirled in bygone eons. They will perhaps solve the mystery of the North "magnetic" Pole by means of compass oscillations. They will find out if polar weather observatories are feasible, thus portending possible long-range weather forecasting. They will learn what microscopic and other animal life dwell in the green polar deeps.

RESIGNATION DEMANDED IN QUIZ

Convict Tells of Letters And Fomenting Prisoners; Wounds Kill Second Victim

JOLIET, Ill., March 16.—(AP.) — Warden Henry C. Hill said today the Rev. George Whitmeyer, state penitentiary chaplain, had been asked to resign three weeks ago after the discovery of evidence that he had been fomenting disaffection and carrying letters to and from prisoners.

Investigators for the "secret six" crime-fighting committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce demanded of the prison administration that Chaplain Whitmeyer be removed.

His resignation was received February 25, three days after the fatal ambush of three escaping prisoners whose death he called "murder" at the hands of prison guards.

Warden Hill made his statement to newspapermen at the old penitentiary shortly after he had announced the death of a second convict from wounds inflicted by guards during Saturday's riot of 1,100 rebellious prisoners. Four convicts were shot, two fatally, and a captain of guards suffered a broken arm in the uprising.

CONVICT TELLS

The warden said:

"A convict brought to my office by Deputy Warden Erickson said Chaplain Whitmeyer was telling the prisoners 'what this place needs is a damn good riot.'"

Warden Hill said six steel saws had been found Saturday night in a cell of the new penitentiary at Statesville, near here, and that a joint riot and attempted jail break probably had been interrupted. A code message telling of an automobile to be ready for the plotters led to the discovery, he said.

GUARD REDOUBLED

Meanwhile, with a redoubled guard watchfully patrolling the walls, officials began the slow restoration of the routine which was broken here Saturday by the short-lived uprising.

Warden Hill and his aides supervised the reorganization with the greatest possible caution. Hill was fearful, he said, that the 1,100 prisoners, kept to their cells on short rations since the outbreak, might cause further trouble. The 43 ring leaders who engineered the outbreak will be kept in solitary confinement indefinitely.

BUSHMAN HERE IN BRIDE HUNT

Refusing to be photographed without his makeup yesterday at a rehearsal in the William Penn Hotel, Francis X. Bushman, debonair actor and wife-hunter, said he was still on the lookout for a bride.

Bushman, who sometime ago declared he desired a companion who would bring a considerable fortune with her, and who must also be "fairly good looking and fond of travel," said he had not yet found the prospective bride.

He remarked:

"I always have hopes. Pittsburgh has a generous supply of women the type for which I am searching, and I feel that my search will not be in vain."

Bushman brought with him his Great Dane dog. He insisted on engaging an apartment here where he could feed the dog himself.

LINGLE MURDER TRIAL OPENS

CHICAGO, March 16.—(INS.)—Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis gunman, went on trial today in Criminal Court for the gangland murder of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, racketeering reporter, Gangland's most notorious characters, living and dead, are expected to pass in review before Brothers' fate is decided.

Defense attorneys have admitted they have no inkling of the basis for the charge against their client. Brothers was indicted without the defense learning what evidence was presented to the grand jury.

Two witnesses to the reporter's murder last June 9 are said to have identified Brothers as the blonde gunman who fired the death shot. They are Warren Williams and Otto Svoboda.

N. Y. JURY SIFTS KILLINGS, DOPE

NEW YORK, March 16.—(INS.)—The trail of contraband dope linked with the life of Vivian Gordon brought an unexpected turn today to the investigation of her murder.

It also precipitated a sudden revival of the Rothstein murder case and the attempted assasination of Jack (Legs) Diamond. A ruthless exposure of the forces veiling the three-ply murder mystery was promised.

The March federal grand jury has taken the matter in its own hands. It has notified United States Attorney Medalie that it will take advantage of its legal powers and reopen its investigation of 1 year ago, wherein it condemned corruption and inefficiency in the New York Federal Narcotic Bureau.

KIDNAPING FAILS IN DIVORCE

CHICAGO, March 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Margaret Gaylord Brunker, estranged wife of the millionaire political reform worker, Albert Ridgely Brunker, re-established herself in their Lake Forest home today. She was enjoined from removing her children from it by an injunction issued yesterday after her abortive attempt to take them to Nevada where, she is quoted as saying, she intended divorcing Brunker.

The couple have been estranged since last year, and are reported to have signed an agreement by which their two children would remain at the Lake Forest home while Mr. and Mrs. Brunker live with them on alternate months.

Yesterday, during Brunker's absence in New York, Mrs. Brunker packed the clothing of herself and the children, took along the servants and started for the station. They were halted in Highland Park by police officials.

3 ADMIT FATAL SCHOOL PRANK

LONDON, March 16.—(AP.)—A purported anonymous confession of having caused the death of Francis Ellis, Cambridge undergraduate, today was in the hands of the boy's mother.

The confession, which the Daily Mail said was delivered to her shortly after a recent inquest, is from three fellow-students of Ellis, who say in the latter that they tied him and gagged him, expecting him to be found and released the next morning by a servant.

The servant found him as planned, but he was dead from asphyxiation. There was no clue to the circumstances of his demise, and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

The three school fellows of Ellis said their act had been prompted by his sneering at the school games. Scotland Yard is investigating.

West and Northwest of this section the barometer is falling. It is somewhat colder than yesterday over the eastern half of the country and over the southern plains states with frost reported in Northern Texas and Arkansas. Over the northern plains and westward over the Rocky Mountain states temperatures are rising rapidly.

WENDEL RITES DRAW THRONG

NEW YORK, March 16.—(Universal.)—A little old lady who devoted her life to minding her own business was buried Sunday while thousands who had never seen her in life, even in a newspaper photograph, struggled to get a glimpse of the coffin that contained her body. She was Ella Wendel, spinster, 80.

She left a $100,000,000 fortune, which will be distributed to charity. Five automobiles followed the body to the family vault in Trinity Cemetery. Only one relative, a nephew, attended the funeral. He, George Stanley Shirk, is the only kinsman to survive the last of the Wendel line.

About her a thousand myths had been woven, but the curious drawn by the rites saw none of them substantiated. They saw only locked doors at Fifth avenue and Thirty ninth street, opening when friends of the Wendel family appeared. Flickering gas lights faintly illumined a murky hall. From a few automobiles whitehaired men and women alighted to be admitted to the house.

GUARD ALFONSO IN LONDON

LONDON, March 16.—(AP.)—Heavy police guards were provided today for King Alfonso XIII, of Spain, who arrived here yesterday from Spain to visit his ailing mother-in-law, the Princess Beatrice.

Credentials of all persons approaching the railroad station were inspected carefully, and those who were not travelers or had no business on the platform were not admitted when his train arrived from Dover.

The Duke of York, the Marquis of Carisbrooke and the personnel of the Spanish Embassy were among the reception committee. The Spanish ambassador met the monarch at Dover.

Soviet Offers Bonus To Get Coal Miners

MOSCOW, March 16.—(INS.)—Special inducements in the form of lower tax were offered peasants and members of farm collectives today by the Soviet government in an attempt to draw recruits to the fast waning ranks of the coal miners.

The disagreeable and dangerous work in the Soviet coal pits has driven miners to seek other lines of endeavor, leaving the mines depleted of manpower. It was estimated that at least 14,000 men left the Dvina Valley coal mines in the last 10 days.

SWAMPED BY TRIFLES

Mrs. J. O. Miller, in discussing the findings of the League declared that the city has allowed itself to be swamped with trifles while the important channels through which taxpayers' money has been poured have been given little attention. The budget prepared by the finance committee of Council and a budget in the true sense of the word, Mrs. Miller says, only has the budget been passed before the records start to fill up with ordinances transferring funds from one code appropriation to another. Much of this, Mrs. Miller believes, may be charged to carelessness of Council in the past sessions.

Council includes numerous warrants for salaries of employes who have been sick. The League does not oppose payment to sick city employes, Mrs. Miller said, but advocates a system by businesslike way of handling the payment. Better methods of looking after the city pension fund are also favored. Inquiry by members of the League show that 17% of employes listed for pensions are not taken until the actual application for pension is made.

More careful handling of the pension fund is recommended.

Mrs. Miller and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the League of Women Voters, conferred with some of the auditors of Mellon & Co. today, but refused to tell what they had discussed. Mrs. Miller admitted that many reports had been received by the organization.

The League of Women Voters and other groups of citizens who have undertaken the present investigation of Pittsburgh's food purchase were lauded by the Rev. George W. Shelton, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, in his sermon yesterday morning.

Dr. Shelton said:

"Sometimes I think Pittsburgh has just the kind of administration it wants. The bad citizenship of the stay-at-homes, who do not vote, is responsible for our conditions. Who could have expected other than what we have?

"The remedy is at the primaries, and then at the polls.

"We ought to have a city manager plan of government. This is progressive, business-like, and has been thoroughly tried in many places and found a great improvement over the old boss-ridden, political system.

"Out of all evil some good comes, so we find a number of members of our City Council brushing up on their scripture passages and prayers. Some are especially recommended, among them being:

"'Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep His commandments for this is the whole duty of man.' 'For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil.'"

DESK BUYING SHOWS LOSS

It also delivered the desks for the Board of Education.

LOOSE METHODS CHARGED

"The buying for the school board was done shrewdly with careful investigation of the possible discounts, and money was saved for the taxpayers, wholesale merchants say. The city officials seemingly made little effort to investigate, and simply turned the work over to the lowest bidder.

Loose methods are charged also in city expenditures for numerous small purchases made separately. Many small orders for such items as a can of paint, a bushel of apples or a box of pencils are found in the records.

Well-managed organizations observers say, buy such things in quantities and requisition them out of a storeroom as needed, making large savings by buying in volume.

"CONFIRMING" ORDERS

Many of the small orders are of the "confirming" type. Controller James P. Kerr says that he has made an effort to hold "confirming" orders to a minimum. He believes they are justified, however, if it is possible to buy a better product at a cheaper price than could be had through bids.

Green goods are largely bought through "confirming" orders on the ground that the buyer can select quality and often get a better price.

LAWYERS VISIT BEAUTY IN CELL

NICE, March 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, who shot and killed her husband, Philadelphia theatrical magnate, last week after a jealous quarrel, was visited in her cell today by two lawyers whom she has engaged to defend her.

The two attorneys, Gassier and Bonifacio, reviewed details of the shooting and planned to confer with the examining magistrate. Neither was willing to discuss the case for publication until after completion of interrogation by the magistrate, which may not be for 10 days.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, who was the "Miss St. Louis" of 1923 at the Atlantic City beauty contest, must remain in her cell at least pending filing of definite charges, although she may be taken out for a while today to re-enact the slaying for police.

CALL PHYSICIAN IN DEATH TRIAL

HILLSBORO, Ore., March 16.—(AP.)—Dr. Paul B. Cooper was to take the stand today in the trial of Nelson C. Bowles, Portland capitalist, and Irma G. Loucks, his former stenographer, for the murder of Mrs. Bowles.

Dr. Cooper was called to attend Mrs. Bowles when she either was stabbed or stabbed herself in Miss Loucks' apartment in Portland November 12.

His testimony was awaited with interest, because authorities charge he has two different stories of the affair. In the first version, police said, he told them Mrs. Bowles lived for 20 minutes after his arrival, whereas in a later statement he said she died a minute or two after his arrival.

Illness of seven jurors from influenza interrupted the trial last Wednesday. The court continued the case until today.

Rockefeller Estate Freed from Trains

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., March 16.—(AP.)—When the 1 a. m. New York Central passenger train from Pocantico Hills crossed the Buckhouts Switch near Briar Cliff yesterday, Pocantico Hills, Tarrytown Heights and Tower Hills passed into history as railroad towns.

For years locomotives have poured smoke over the Pocantico Hills golf course. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., participated in a move to build a cutoff several miles away and helped pay for it. Citizens vainly fought the cutoff, which leaves the three towns without railroad connections.

TOLEDO RENEWS FOOD PROBE

TOLEDO, O., March 16.—(AP.)—The grand jury renewed its investigation into county and city offices today as Sheriff Joseph Zimmerman and Deputy Sheriff Clarence Honberger were ordered arraigned on charges of presenting false bills for the purchase of jail food and supplies.

Indictments voted against others involved in the alleged juggling of accounts are to be returned this week.

Kenyon Made Chief Postal Inspector

Takes Tablets for Headache, May Die

Mistaking two poisonous tablets for asperin, which he took for a headache, Otto Singer, 36, of 1319 Sandusky street, North Side, is in a critical condition in Allegheny General Hospital, police reported.

Ship Beached After Collision in Fog

DOVER, England, March 15.—(AP.)—The Belgian channel steamer Princess Marie Jose, bound for Ostend, with 40 passengers, rammed the British freighter Artificer, out of Goole for Jersey with coal. The Princess Marie Jose was only slightly damaged and after a brief delay went on to Ostend. The Artificer, her starboard bow stove in, came into Dover under her own power and was beached.

No More "Special Blend" Coffee

On account of the very low price at which we can now sell My-Te-Good Coffee, we have discontinued the sale of our Special Blend Coffee.

The REASON WHY our new low price on My-Te-Good Coffee is possible and why we have quit selling Special Blend:

All the Coffees Used in Our My-Te-Good Coffee Come From Brazil!

Coffee, in Brazil, is in a highly chaotic condition—prices are demoralized, everything pertaining to coffee is topsy-turvy and good Brazilian Coffee is actually being exported for less money than it costs to grow it.

Consequently, being a blend of fine Brazilian Coffees, My-Te-Good can now be sold by us at a price practically as low as that at which we can sell the lesser quality Special Blend, as Special Blend contained some coffee which does not come from Brazil.

More than 30 committees will be in daily sessions during the week through Friday, covering the entire range of building materials.

A feature of the program will be a regional meeting of the Pittsburgh district on Wednesday. A dinner will be held that night. Inspection trips through local industrial plants will occupy the committees during the week.

Man Killed, Brothers Hurt in Plane Crash

GREENVILLE, R. I., March 16.—(AP.)—Walter S. Barnes, 22, was killed and his brother, Robert H. Barnes, 20, was injured when a monoplane piloted by Robert crashed into a hillside apple tree on the Dodge farm, near here. There were no witnesses to the crash, but indications are that the plane was flying low in fog at the time.

Gambling Devices Get Students Lunch Cash

Penny gambling devices comparable to slot machines have been operating in two stores across from Peabody High School to attract the lunch money of the pupils, it was revealed in East End Police Court today.

Police raided two of the stores and arraigned the proprietors, Harry Deer, 27, of 5926 Margaretta street, and C. A. Wolf, 32, of 5936 Margaretta street. After he had reprimanded the proprietors, Magistrate William J. Soost fined them $50 each.

GIRL-SLAYING SUSPECT HELD

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 16.—(INS.)—Arrested at Tecate, Mex., as a suspect in the murder of Virginia Brooks, 10-year-old schoolgirl, Ture Vallin, 28, a fisherman, was held for questioning here today.

Police and deputy sheriffs hurried across the border to Tecate after Mexican authorities advised police that they had located Wallin.

They took him in custody and he is technically held for investigation by the United States immigration authorities. While intoxicated, Wallin forfeited his bond and left for Mexico, according to police.

Wallin departed on that trip shortly after the Brooks girl vanished on her way to school.

DEFENSE READY FOR PANTAGES

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—(INS.)—Attorneys for Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire showman, announced today that a legal defense for their client has been completed and will be presented when Pantages faces preliminary hearing April 13 on charges which grew out of an investigation of the Hollywood "girl bazar" case.

Their investigation on behalf of Pantages unearthed evidence which will prove Pantages' innocence at the hearing in San Diego, it was announced. Further than to promise that their findings would prove sensational, the attorneys refused to discuss the matter.

The "syndicate" was allegedly operated by Olive Clirk Day, former screen actress, and William H. Jobelmann, one-time publicity agent for the Pantages interests. Both are under indictment.

Wealthy English M. P. Dies at 62

LONDON, March 16.—(AP.)—Hugh Morrison, one of England's wealthiest men and for 13 years a member of Parliament for the Salisbury division of Wiltshire, died here yesterday after a long illness. He was 62.

The exact amount of the wealth he controlled is not known. He inherited a vast estate from his father and later was the chief beneficiary under the will of his uncle, Charles Morrison, who left nearly $35,000,000.

HOLMES FETED BY HIS CLERKS

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(AP)—Oliver Wendell Holmes, dean of the Supreme Court yesterday, received congratulations from 15 of his present and former law clerks on having attained the age of 90 a week previously. The reception, an annual affair, was held at Holmes' home on Eye street.

Shortly after he was named to the bench by President Roosevelt in 1902, Justice Holmes offered the ranking graduate of the Harvard Law School a place in his office for one year. He has continued the custom through the years.

Not all his former employes were present yesterday, several being absent because of illness. The list included Robert Wales, of Philadelphia, his present secretary, and Charles Denby, Jr., and Francis Biddle, also of Philadelphia.

Those who died from drinking the poison alcohol were Harry Isenberg, 28; Phillip Ashton, 31; William Green, 28, and William Johnston, 35, all of McKeesport.

According to detectives, Isenberg purchased two quarts of the alcohol at a McKeesport garage. Accompanied by the other men, a drinking bout was started Saturday, which lasted for several hours and broke up with all in a semi-conscious condition.

Davis, Jr., 16, of 2956 Banksville road, a third-year student in South Hills High School, was re-arrested by Dormont police and held for hearing today on similar charges plus one for pointing fire-arms.

HYMIE MARTIN'S GIRL FRIEND IN CUSTODY

Mary Outland, Taken to Ohio, Says She Has Nothing to Fear in Slaying Inquiry are listed as Alfred Goldstrum, 28, of Parkview avenue, and Dave Cohen, 32, of Whiteside road. They are being held for investigation.

Detectives who arrested Mary in an apartment in Watsonia boulevard found a letter which they interpret as a valuable clue. The note, said to have been written by Mary to her family, had not been mailed. The letter:

"Dear Ruth, Mother and Brother Dave:

"Gee, I suppose you all think I'm just a terrible person and really don't care if I write or not, nevertheless I am writing. I suppose mother will never speak to me again after all the grief I've caused her, but Honey, this mixup is all so unreal to me, as I know perfectly well we are being framed, therefore I won't give myself up.

"The people who said they saw us together at different places must have gone mad with the thought of getting easy money (that reward), also some cheap publicity. It certainly must be enticing to them. Oh, how can people lie so, and how cheap they will really feel when we prove to the authorities concerned we were really elsewhere.

'LIES,' SHE SAYS

"I read in the papers where they would get a clue to my whereabouts. Also some half-baked idiot has seen me places—for instance, a train conductor said he made a date with me. How perfectly foolish. All the time I haven't moved from this room. Yet the people lie, lie and lie some more.

"I wonder if they don't realize that they will perjure themselves if they take the stand. Yet what chance have I. A multitude of people—words and lies, I should say, against mine?

"I wanted to call mother badly, but I thought it would be too unwise to do so, and such a dear mother, too. Oh, why didn't I listen to her years ago.

"TOO LATE FOR ME"

"Just look at all the trouble poor little Joan got into just by making a good intentional call. Yet they tried to tell her where I had gone when really the poor kid didn't know. The truth of the matter is no one knows, only you all now.

"This, of course, means that I'll never get to see my baby again, for 'Orlie' is certainly not 'boosting my stock' to any of them.

"I know how he is. How neatly he framed me, too! I think God has punished him enough, though.

"Funny how I think of him now isn't it? Thinking of the babies naturally links him in my mind, of course.

"'Tis a wicked old world, Ruth, and honey, profit by my experiences. 'Tread the straight and narrow.' I, of all people, say things like that, for what is that old proverb, 'Practice what you preach,' but it's too late for me.

"By the way, how's Iona May, Mac, Lena?

"I'm wondering what mother thinks, all others don't matter, for it's she that really has 'stuck through thick and thin' for me all my life, and what a life!

"I guess I started out on the wrong foot, or some peculiar thing, for I surely messed things up, haven't I?

"And all those people pointing their fingers at me! Oh, how am I going to stand it? But that's life itself, I guess.

FEELS SORRY FOR "H"

"Those blamed newspapermen, how tangled they get their stories, saying I lived with H. Oh, if they would just let me talk to them without putting me behind those hideous, mocking bars. I could convince them of so many things.

"How sorry I feel for my H, knowing he is innocent. Why doesn't whoever really did it come forward so they will let him out. I would think whoever did it his conscience would hurt him, and he'd give himself up.

"What a tangle!

"There is lots I'd like to write about, but I just don't know how to word it, I guess. At that I make a much better conversationalist than I do a correspondent.

"Sorry I can't write the usual jolly letter, but it just isn't in me, I guess. I know you'll understand, won't you, dear? Thanks!

"Wish I was home with mother so I could have a darn good cry on that shoulder that I've always cried my troubles on. Not that I haven't bawled. My eyes look like balloon tires. But it would be the consolation of it, I guess.

"I'll write later, and if mother is really worried, tell her not to, Ruth, for I'm all safe and sound, and just as fat. Now isn't the latter too discouraging? Oh yeh?

"Kiss my mother, also a big kiss for Dave, and tell them not to judge me too harshly, as I haven't done anything so terribly wicked. Furthermore, time will prove all that, honey. So long, Shorty!

"Your old 'Sis'
"JUST MARY.

PARIS Reproductions
In the Misses' Coat Section

Vionnet is popular with us, so in this collection we show copies of four of her models. We like her graceful scarf collars, her diagonal lines which cannot be easily nor cheaply reproduced, and the peculiar design of her intriguing three-quarter sleeves.

We are enthusiastic, too, about Goupy's monk coat, the most astonishing coat we've seen in many a day! In brown chongaleen with trimming of muscade fox. And nothing could be more youthful than Patou's coat, with collarless neckline and sleeves so cleverly designed that one never misses the fur, and a bloused back that does wonderful things to slim figures.

Prices range from $39.50 to $165.

Alma Leaves Party When She Sees Son, Father Join in Drugs

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XXXIX.

I lived in a weird world, peopled with ghosts.

Parties, parties, parties, orgie, orgie, orgie—a few hours of sanity, then down into the dirt and slime of degradation again.

One night at one of these horrible affairs I saw a white-haired old man with sunken jaws and the dull eyes of a confirmed addict galvanize suddenly into a semblance of life.

Miss Rubens

His corpse-like face flushed with something like honest blood, he leaped to his feet and stood like some hideous caricature of death dragged from the grave and gazed at a young man and a young woman who came into the room so dazed with drugs that the young man could scarcely stagger.

The young man stopped in his tracks.

Then he laughed — a wild, cracked laugh that sounded like the hideous screams of laughter I had heard in the mad house at Patton.

"Hello Dad," hiccoughed the young man. "You on the dope too. So that's what's the matter with you, eh, and I thought you were a nice, clean old man, just getting a little groggy with age.

"Gee, I may have to wait for your coin after all."

The old man turned livid.

Then the girl who was with the young man took him by the arm.

"Aw," she gurgled, in her hoarse voice of the streets, "aw-what do we care, take another sniff and dance it off."

And the old man followed the street girl's advice and took another sniff and in five minutes time he was shaking his aged flanks in a goat-like dance, and the pale girl who came in with his son was his partner.

The son danced with me.

He laughed all the time we were dancing.

"Gee," he said, "the old man sure is some stepper, and to think I've been afraid of an old goat like that all my life."

I heard afterwards that the party lasted for three days, and the young man and his father changed partners, and everybody seemed quite happy.

I broke the usual rule of the dope world and discovered who the old man was.

You'd be surprised to hear his name.

He has two beautiful granddaughters, not yet five years old, and a proud heartbroken wife.

When the parties began to grow a little dull they brought around a big silver bowl of something I thought was cocaine.

It seemed a little whiter than the ordinary "snow," to which I had been accustomed.

"Awfully white tonight, this snow," I said to my escort.

Heroin Addicts

"Say," said the escort, "you're new, aren't you? That isn't coke, that's heroin—watch it work, it will give you a laugh."

And it did give me a laugh, a crazy wild, madwoman's laugh, that rings in my ears to this very day.

The laugh of a Lost Soul, staggering down to perdition.

Heroin is about five times as strong as cocaine. It works faster, and it lasts longer and it lashes the nerves into a wild fury of such excitement as none but maniacs know.

For the cocaine user is a maniac while he is using the coke. And he will do anything in the world to get that coke to use.

Home, friends, mother, father, wife, husband, children, honor, self-respect, decency, these are all merely funny words to the habitual coke user.

Every once in a while I came to, out of the wild whirl which was my life.

Sick and trembling, and dazed, I would make up my mind to reform—but the coke and heroin and the morphine grinned at me like skeletons, and I grinned back again like the poor crazed fool that I was.

Then one day I got a shock that drove me into another attempt to break my chain. I was offered a part, a great part, in a great play in the talkies. It was the lead in "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

My heart sang with joy. Why, I wasn't just a poor, dazed nobody after all. I was still Alma Rubens, the actress. I could still "make good."

I took the part home with me, and began to study it.

I locked myself in my room in a good hotel and went to work.

No use.

I couldn't remember a sentence of my new part—not one sentence after the other—dope had taken its toll.

Brain Gives Way

This time my brain was really gone.

I called in a good physician—a really good physician. The doctor came to see me, gave me one glance, and telegraphed to my mother in California.

"Your daughter needs you, sorely," that's what the doctor said in his telegram.

Did my mother respond to that cry for help?—why she was My Mother. Of course she did. She came on the very first train and the first thing she said to me when she arrived was:

"Darling, has dope got you again?"

I lied to my mother. I told her that I was through with dope once and for all. Oh, how I wished that what I said was true.

My mother nursed me until I got back on my feet—apparently. This took several weeks. I took my drugs all the time, but I took them in moderation. And she never suspected me at all. Or if she did she never said a word about it.

I drank a good deal, too. She knew that, and she begged me not to drink.

I paid no attention to her, and we quarreled bitterly.

I was turned out of the hotel, and poor mother tried to get me to go to California with her, but I didn't want to go. I told her I was studying my role in "Lady Chatterley's Lover," and that I would straighten up and stop drinking that very day.

I did stop drinking, and I did stop dope. I never touched a thing for three days, and by the time I put my mother on the train I was in such agony that I was barely able to crawl.

Poor woman, she was on her way to California.

On her way home to the ranch in the green hills—home to peace and happiness, and comfort. And I, poor wretch, was back again—on the dope.

Tomorrow Alma Rubens describes the orgy of dope parties into which she plunged when left alone again in New York.

It's Income Tax Day; Other Merry Occasions Near

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

games of childhood. The old guard plays that it is a windy day and the Progressives are an autumn leaf.

But that is a long way off. Today is the day that your first tax installment is due and the government won't take groceries.

If Andy Mellon would only take it out in trade we would all want to be in the junk business.

We managed to get the dough together by scraping the bread board lean. And we hope Andy doesn't mind if there are a lot of crumbs and plenty of splinters in it.

Does the gasoline in the hose belong to the tourist or the filling station?

In the case of the people versus the innocent bystanders we find that it does.

"I am against these wildcat filling stations which make the motorist do the guessing. A man pays for 10 gallons of gas and he should get at least 50 per cent deductible insurance.

"The dial may point to 10 but there is still a gallon left in the hose. The longer the hose the bigger the loss by evaporation.

"The man with a 10-gallon tank would be foolish to purchase 15 gallons of gasoline. But he must do so in order to get nine.

"When you buy a pound of steak you must take the fat with the lean and the thumb with the ounces. But gasoline is gasoline and has nothing to do with the precipitate of rainfall.

"There is always a residue of gas left in the hose. I concede that the hose belongs to the filling station. It is one of the fixtures of the industry and should not be wrapped around a tourist's neck during the ensuing argument.

"But justice is equity, and too many tourists are getting goggle-eyed trying to watch the tank and the dial at the same time.

"Some filling stations have adopted the Queensbury system of ending the rounds by a bell. At each gallon a gong rings. But it seems that some rounds are awfully short.

"I will have to reserve my decision."

As usual the decision is found in the reserve tank.

In the meantime the arguments are resounding all over the united detours. We will have to wait until Judge Rong guesses right.

Why not go back to the old days of buying kerosene when the grocer put a potato on the end of the spout?

Some people don't care for a gasoline taste with their potatoes. So that's the end of that.

LEHMAN DAY

May-Stern's Silver Jubilee

IT WAS JUST 25 YEARS AGO . . .

When Mr. Leo Lehman, a young man filled with ambition and inspired with new ideals of service to the public, opened the small furniture store which today has become a nationally-famous institution — May-Stern & Co.

I am going to make Tuesday a day Pittsburgh will never forget. It marks a quarter of a century—and how short the years seem as I look back—since I first opened the doors of May-Stern & Co. for business. To celebrate the day, I've gone through the store and selected the merchandise on this page. I've cut the prices—every one of them—in appreciation for the success you have made possible. It's my birthday gift to you—my friends. And tomorrow, as I greet you with a smile and frendly hand-clasp, what a flood of happy memories will come back to both of us.

ARMSTRONG AVOIDS SHOW

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong went to McKees Rocks yesterday, but he did not attend the benefit motion picture show in the Roxian Theater, to which he had been invited. Instead he made a personal visit to Miles Bryan, McKees Rocks political leader.

The commissioner and his wife drove to the theater and stepped from their machine. George Schildkraut, a county employe, spoke to the commissioner and Armstrong and his wife drove away. They went to Bryan's office and did not return to the theater.

D. J. Selznick, one of the theater operators, announced that sufficient funds had been raised at the benefit to keep 15 or 20 families for some time. The benefit was arranged by the Sto-Rox Welfare Fund.

Pet Dog Saves Family of 6 From Bomb

MECHANICVILLE, N. Y., March 16.—(AP)—The barking of a pet terrier probably saved Mr. and Mrs. Peter Michloins, their four children, their home and nearby houses in an attempted dynamiting plot here.

Marco Constucci, 47, who, police said, had been forcing his attentions on Mrs. Michloins, was being held on an open charge.

The family was aroused from sleep by the barking of the dog. On the porch, Michloins saw a sputtering fuse. The fuse was attached to a tin can containing 16 sticks of dynamite.

Yost Quartet and Helen Bell Rush

Schenley Ballroom

PROGRAM

Three Fugues	Beethoven
Donna Lombarda
La Prigionere
La Pesca dell'Anello
Quartet, Op. 2	A. Gretchaninow

The Yost Quartet played the closing concert of their season yesterday afternoon in Schenley Ballroom, offering a most original program. Helen Bell Rush, a local soprano, was an attractive soloist in the new songs of Pizzetti, heard here for the first time.

Mr. Lissfelt

The Quartet played better in respect to tone, spontaneity, and ensemble than they have frequently during the winter, and we may safely hand the laurels to the three fugues of Beethoven as their real achievement. Not only the rich content of these works make them congenial for all listeners, but our players seemed to find unusual satisfaction in interpreting them. The Gretchaninow Quartet is a surprising work in that it remains until the last movement so entirely un-Russian in fundamental material. The recitative form of the closing themes reminds one of some of the most progressive themes in Beethoven's rondos, rich in dramatic effect, and conducive to utmost freedom in development.

The songs of Pizzetti find their counterpart only in modern Italian opera. Richly scored for strings, the music within the quartet lends a most intense background for the voice. For the singer there is a line of forceful music too, though she may find in the text of these songs endless opportunity for great singing. Helen Bell Rush has a voice of exceeding luscious beauty. She sang with much assurance, and showed real musicianship in her approach to these songs, though dramatically she but shimmed the surface of their content.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Max Epstein

Y. M. & W. H. A.

PROGRAM

Sonata (D minor)	Brahms
Concerto	Tschaikowsky
Fuga	Tartini-Kreisler
Baal-Shem-Nigun	Bloch
Slavanic Dance	Dvorak-Kreisler
Dance Espagnole	De-Falla-Kreisler
Carmen Fantasie	Bizet-Sarasate

The Musical Society of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association presented as an extra concert last night Max Epstein, violinist and protege of Auer. His program included two important works and the usual miniatures that please, no matter who plays them.

Epstein has the technique that is the mark of Auer's school, though not the ease which it has given to most graduates of that studio. There is little variation, however, in his playing, and I must confess that after sitting through the Brahms and that emotional Tschaikowsky Concerto, I remained absolutely untouched in any other way than to wonder at the player's own endurance of such level playing.

Irish President Asks Peace in Broadcast

NEW YORK, March 16.—(INS.)—A plea for peace, in which he hailed Americans as peace leaders, was made by President William T. Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, in a radio talk Sunday from Dublin.

He said Ireland was suffering from the burdens of war, and desired no more conflict. He spoke of the Irish influence in promoting world peace, and sent greetings for St. Patrick's Day to Irishmen in America.

STAGE AND SCREEN REVIEWS, AMUSEMENT NOTES AND HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

By HARRISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.

The picture really will be shot at the famous Mexican resort, and will be a story of its race track. It is an original by Lew Lipton, called "The Whoop-te-do Kid." Quillan plays a jockey who regulates the speed of his mount by leaning over its shoulder and chanting "whoop-te-do, whoop-te-do." The horse responds to the rhythm.

This device, based on fact, and the jockeys who use it are called "whoop-te-do jockeys."

Readers of this column may recall that "The Kid From Madrid" recently was announced as Quillan's next picture. It is being postponed because the racing scenes for the Lipton story must be shot before the close of the Agua Caliente season.

By the way, there will be no crooked work or doped horses in "The Whoop-te-do Kid." Any of these things would reflect upon the track, which is one of the most famous in the world.

Eddie Quillan

THIS JUDGE LISTENED

Wallace Middleton, young coast stock actor owes his opportunity to play a part in "An American Tragedy" to the kindness of a San Francisco judge.

When Middleton got the offer from Paramount he was under subpena to appear as a witness in a Bay City murder case.

Appealing to the judge that this was his greatest opportunity, the young actor won permission to play the part and then return to give testimony.

LILYAN'S FIRST ROLE

As her first role since Paramount signed her to replace Kay Francis, Lilyan Tashman will play the newspaper feature writer in "Up Pops the Devil." Her counterpart will be Skeets Gallagher, as the "boy who worked at Roxy's." Romantic leads in the picture fall to Carole Lombard and Norman Foster.

LATEST GOSSIP

Producer Glogauer in "Once In a Lifetime" exclaims that's the way we do things in Hollywood—no time wasted on thinking. Martin Klavin sent a nine-page synopsis of a story to R. K. O. It arrived in the morning. By noon Bertram Milhauser had read it, and by mid-afternoon contracts were signed for its purchase. By night, Betty Compson had been cast in the leading role. . . . Ann Harding and Harry Bannister are having their new plane especially built. It will have swanky upholstering and will carry a radio. Delivery will be made at the Detroit airport, and the two stars will fly it back to Hollywood. . . . Director John Cromwell has bought a string of polo ponies and is devoting much time to the sport. In the old days, Jack Holt, Hal Roach and Will Rogers were the only polo players in the film colony. Now even Arthur Caesar has taken it up. . . . Mervyn Leroy leaves here Sunday for New York to see "Five Star Final." After a week's stay, he returns to Hollywood to start the picture with Edward G. Robinson as star. . . . Gary Cooper is wandering forlornly around Hollywood during Lupe Velez' absence in Arizona on location.

LAUGHTER AND DANCE RULING THE ROOST IN THE DAVIS

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

Beginning with Max and his gang, which consists of four beautiful and intelligent dogs, the week's vaudeville at the Davis is bright and breezy, with laughter and dance ruling the roost. Max himself is a good acrobat and contortionist, but his dogs are comedians as well. They make Stuart and Lash look to their laurels, or onions, or whatever vegetables grow in vaudeville gardens.

George Seibel

Stuart and Lash are clever comedians, and could dispense with the lady-like moments in their comedy. In front of a dentist's lair they extract much fun without forceps. And Demoiselle Shipley, the adagio dansense with them, is grace and agility personified.

There is more of the same when the Lee Twins begin their posing and dancing. There are three or four extra pairs of twins—even Volstead could see them.

RED-HEADED SONGS

Memories of old times were revived when a red-headed prima donna yclept Primrose Semon sang some red-headed songs of the Eva Tanguay and Anna Held sort. Miss Semon is a capital comedienne but no Sigrid Onegin nor Emily Post.

For the tailspin of the program Stuart and Lash bring on their Cavaliers, playing jazz without too much osteopathy. It's a good windup to a very good program—in which the dancers are restful to the eyes, the comedians ruthless to the ribs, and the clever dogs make us proud we belong to the animal kingdom.

"KEPT HUSBANDS"

Dorothy Mackaill in her newest picture, "Kept Husbands," is the film feature. Dorothy is the daughter of a millionaire steel mill owner, who is admirably played by Robert McWade. She falls in love with the $45 a week steel boss in her father's mills, who is the handsome Joel McCrea. She gets him with the blessing of his mother, graciously acted by Mary Carr. They are married after having witnessed a sample of marital slavery in which that other excellent actress, Clara Kimball Young, keeps a husband to carry her dog.

After a series of domestic episodes in which Dorothy will not let Joel work, he revolts and goes off to St. Louis, but she follows him for a happy finish in the Pullman car. It is a well-built film romance, with the best moments when Ned Sparks utters perverted proverbs of canned cynicism.

WORLD AND RACKETS HAVE LITTLE WAR IN THE WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Gangsters march in "The Last Parade," new picture in the Warner. It is another of those racketeering melodramas. It is the World War and a gang war. It is a lot of fireworks.

Jack Holt is present as a newspaper man who goes to the war. He comes back, minus an eye, to find he has a place on the honor roll, but has lost his job. So he becomes a racketeer.

Tom Moore is present as a policeman who goes to the war. He comes back, thanks to Mr. Holt's heroism, to find his old job, improved by promotion, awaiting him. So he gets after the racketeers.

THE THIRD PARTY

And Constance Cummings is present as a nurse who goes to war. She comes back, the third party in a triangle of friendship, to find her interest divided between Gangster Holt and Policeman Moore. So she finds herself in another war—a war of the racketeers.

There are others, too. The rival gangster, for example, who operates a meat-packing company. On his business card you read the slogan, "Just In Case." And you soon learn that his "meat" is much better before it is "cut."

A KILLING GESTURE

Then there is the heroine's brother, a newspaper man who "knows too much." He gets bumped off and you get the thought that the movie-makers were inspired to this killing gesture by newspaper headlines.

The realism and dramatic power of "Little Caesar" and "Doorway to Hell" are missing in "The Last Parade." Yet, the film entertains. The director has managed some intriguing touches. The "last parade" idea is put across cleverly. The cast does well enough. And the picture has action, humor and the usual moral—the way of all gangster flesh leads to a chattering machine gun or a hot spot in the Death House.

Comedy Act

HERO IN HARRIS TRIES TO AMERICANIZE HULA GIRL

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Ben Lyon, as hero in the new picture, "Aloha," in the Harris may realize by now that it is easier to teach an old dog new tricks than it is to Americanize a hula-hula gal from the South Seas.

Anyway, Ben's role has him marrying a South Seas maiden, portrayed by Raquel Torres, and then trying to turn her into a cultured lady. He brings her back from the tropical isle to his aristocratic home to meet the frowns of his family. Robert Edeson, as rich father, says either Ben or the girl must go.

If you think you know the worst in lady villians after seeing Lady Isabel's sister-in-law in "East Lynne," you've another "think" coming. The hero's sister in "Aloha" even stoops so low as to get the heroine drunk.

Mr. Lyon has a time of it—what with his disapproving family and friends, and his untamed little wife! And he seems quite surprised to learn that her people are angry at her because she married a white man, just as his folks are at him because he married a native. Which goes to show it is all one's point of view.

Things You Would Never Have Known

(But for My Good Nature)

That Rudy Vallee's license number on his motor car is the same as his Villa Vallee address 10E60.

That there is a tennis court in Brooklyn on which tennis is never played. It's the name of a street.

That the same stuff is used to make a clay pipe as goes into a sapphire. (Isn't he uninteresting at times?)

That there is a man whose real name is Rudolph Vallee, listed in the Montreal phone book as R. L. Vallee, 49 Brillon St.

That a ha-ha is a hidden fence. Yeah? Look it up, then!

That Rockne, as a student, failed to make the football team.

That there is no such thing as a coffee bean. Coffee is a berry!

That those Heidelberg University duels are phoneys. The swords' ends are blunted, the duelists wear pads and guards, the swords must be held shoulder high, and only the wrists must be moved.

That there is less snowfall per year in Arctic America, than let's say, New York State or Michigan. (So I've read, I mean).

That the Bedouins serve their guests cups of coffee half full. A full cup of java is considered an insult.

That gold leaf, which lasts through all sorts of weather, disintegrates if held in the hand.

That the Chinese cannot pronounce the word "business."

That Halley's Comet is due again about 1985. It is the only conspicuous comet whose return can be predicted.

That you are not dead when your heart stops beating.

That Frances Williams denies she and Alan Jones, of the California Collegians, have parted and that unless the report is stifled she fears more laymen will take up music lessons.

That electricity was first discovered in frog legs.

That rugs over 100 years old are moth-proof.

That there is a new and very popular song now being warbled called: "Hmmm, Mmm, Hmmm, Winchellike To Take a Walk?"

That the mint men will tell you that paper money is more expensive to maintain and that a dollar bill wears out in a year.

That Alphonse Mucha, the mural painter, can paint with either hand, and with both at the same time. You couldn't afford to pay him.

That there are fifteen principal causes of death.

That a meat market must have 1,200 patrons to be successful.

That Herz (they named a wave after him. "The Herzian Wave"), who made radio possible, is unknown, except to the scientists.

That you develop an appetite if you eliminate smoking.

That the best poker chips are made out of cheese.

That there are 69 newspapers published daily in New York City, and I don't mean Brooklyn, which only has seven.

That the expression, "Little White Lies," comes from Balzac's "Sewing lies with white thread," in case the subject comes up.

That the Christmas tree was first discovered in Egypt.

That April Fools' Day originated with the Hindus, who celebrated it on March 31, but the Romans' Feast of the Fools was held on Feb. 17.

That the hat band originated, it is said, in medieval times, when a knight tied the scarf of his lady around his helmet.

Eugene O'Neill's nine-act drama, "Strange Interlude," comes to the Nixon next week with a cast including Elizabeth Risdon as Nina Leeds. It was Miss Risdon who grew aged in the same part when this drama was presented here for three weeks last season. There are no matinees of this play, which begins at 5:30 and has an intermission for dinner. The seat sale opens today in the Nixon b. o. The eats sale opens when and where you dine.

Many actresses and actors who claim to be wedded to their art are unable to show a marriage certificate.

NEED TRAINING WITH TALENT, MOVIES FIND

The speeding-up process of star making, brought about by the exploitation of arresting personalities on the screen, worries John Cromwell, director.

Having just completed the direction of "Unfaithful," which stars Ruth Chatterton, he surveys the future for such actresses.

"Miss Chatterton is a great actress," Cromwell remarks. "The future is rather obscure for the discovery of such talent as she possesses, not because of any lack of talent but due to the tendency away from the careful training that develops it to its highest pitch.

"Personality, looming suddenly out of a picture, marks for stardom some comparative newcomer to the screen. The personality is there but the training is absent.

Mosley 'New Party' Flayed by Official

BIRMINGHAM, England, March 16 (AP)—Hugh Dolton, undersecretary for foreign affairs, promised the help of the labor executive in "fighting these disloyal elements" in a speech here last night in which he attacked the Mosley "new party."

Their boast that they would run 400 candidates at the next election, he said, was an empty one, commenting that he wondered where they would find the money to run them.

Robbed in Taxicab, 2 Passengers Held

WHEELING, W. Va., March 16 (AP)—Garrett Arns, connected with the Wheeling Water Company, was robbed of $90 as he was being driven home in a taxicab, Franklin Hammer, 24, who was in the cab when Arns entered, and William Moore, 23, the driver, were held under $2,500 bail each pending hearings.

Stunt Pilot Dies In Exhibition Crash

COLUMBIA, Tenn., March 16 (AP)—Ernest Robinson, 40, stunt pilot who told airport officials here he led a squadron of the British Royal Air Force from Canada in the World War, crashed to his death at Graymere Field during a stunting exhibition.

Hundreds saw the plane fail to come out of a loop about 2,000 feet in the air and hurtle to earth.

Paris Act Triumph, Says Sophie Tucker

LONDON, March 16—(AP)—Sophie Tucker, undisturbed by publication of reports that her act had been hissed in Paris, arrived here and said there wasn't a word of truth in it. She added:

"I played to the biggest house the Empire Theater ever had, and the reception I got was the finest in my life. Why, I even made two curtain speeches and I'm going back there in the fall for a revue. What do you think of that?"

Family of 6 Dead In Lonely Home

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 16.—(AP.)—Police today discovered an entire family of six wiped out at the lonely homestead of Denman, 90 miles from Newcastle.

John T. Marriott, the homestead owner, was found dead on his doorstep with a wound in his head. Inside the house were the charred bodies of Marriott's wife and four young children. Police believe that he shot his family, fired the homestead, and then killed himself.

Mechanical Phone Girl in Service

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—There's a mechanical telephone girl with a perfect voice. Miss Catherine Shaughnessy, a specialist in diction, made records of all possible calls involving 33 points in New Jersey and Staten Island. When a subscriber makes a call a button or two is pushed and her voice repeats the number in a central office.

Man Saved as 'Chute Opens Near Ground

ATLANTA, March 16.—(AP.)—An unscheduled thrill of horror was given spectators at Candler Field today as they watched Emmet T. Plunkett, young parachute jumper, tumble more than 1,500 feet earthward in a tangle of snarled parachute and shroud lines.

Airmen said Plunkett was no more than 200 feet from the ground when one of his parachutes finally opened. He was uninjured.

REAL ESTATE

In an exchange deal consummated by Benjamin B. Moore, realtor, William A. Farmin conveyed to Watson A. Rell a six-room house and garage at 519 Taylor avenue, Avalon, in exchange for a modern brick home at 99 Mt. Vernon avenue, West View. The total consideration, according to the broker, was $16,500.

A house in Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg, has been sold by Henry M. Martindale to Richard A. Fischer for $9,000. The lot measures 30x122 feet.

H. B. Strope has purchased from the Carnegie Ten-Cent Building and Loan Association an improved property on a lot 47x143 feet in State avenue, Collier Township, for $3,500.

President Hoover has recently signed a bill which makes it possible for real estate owners to clear liens on any properties so encumbered by the United States for unpaid federal bills, including unpaid or disputed income tax bills. The new law provides that the United States can be made a party to a suit for a foreclosure of a mortgage or other lien, so that the details of any lien of the United States may be determined and disposed of in the foreclosure suit. This means that mortgages can be foreclosed, title can be cleared, new mortgages secured with less difficulty and the entire market made easier for properties on which the government has placed liens and secured judgment for delinquent taxes.

A turn for the better has become evident in residential building, according to figures released by the F. W. Dodge Corporation. Down hill for more than two years, this type, looked to by economists to indicate a forward movement after depression, has shown the first turn with its February record.

An improved property in Shady avenue, Fourteenth Ward, has been conveyed by Bertha B. Prichard to Robert Somers Marshall for a private consideration. The lot measures 65x120 feet.

VET LOAN PLEA NABS FUGITIVE

When the veterans' loan went through recently it meant more trouble for Glen Crandall, 31, Pawtucket, R. I., who was held in the county jail here charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Crandall wrote to the Veterans' Bureau in Washington, reminding Uncle Sam he had $800 coming. His address, he said, was Hotel McNeil, Ross street, Warden John McNeil being, at the time, his host.

The letter was on prison paper. Bureau officials traced Crandall, and learned he was on parole from a five-year term in the Howard (R. I.) Penitentiary. Yesterday Andrew S. McDonald, Rhode Island parole officer, arrived to claim Crandell. He was willing to go back. As he left he said to Warden McNeil:

"If any mail comes for me, especially government mail, forward it to the Hotel Howard, at Howard, R. I."

MAN ARRESTED IN SHOOTING

David Tyrnauer, 25, of 3234 Dawson street, was held in Central Police Station today in connection with the shooting of Mrs. Sarah Simon, his mother-in-law, in their home early yesterday. At Mercy Hospital it was said the woman had been shot twice in the breast and probably would die.

Tyrnauer, police said, returned home from a party early yesterday and told his wife he was going to bring a friend into the house. A quarrel followed her objection. Tyrnauer, according to police, ran to a bureau and obtained a small rifle, with which, he told police, he intended to end his life. Mrs. Simon interfered, and a struggle followed during which, police were told, the rifle was discharged twice, both bullets hitting the woman.

DRY HUNT KILLS MAIL DRIVER

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 16.—(AP).—A coroner's jury attempted today to untangle the confused details of a Sunday morning pistol battle in which a mail truck driver and a deputy sheriff were slain as five deputy sheriffs sought a rum runner.

The victims were Leopold Roberts, 29, of Dudley, N. C., a driver under government contract, and W. P. Starling, 35-year-old New Hanover County deputy sheriff.

Elizabeth Hines, one of three young women on the mail truck, said she took the wheel when Roberts complained of a severe headache and was driving when several men ran toward the truck and the shooting began. She did not know the men were officers or who fired the first shot, she added.

Betty Gainey and Dorothy Jackson corroborated her testimony.

DOOMED KILLER DIES IN JAIL

Robert Smith, 22, a Negro of Akron, O., found guilty in Criminal Court, February 14, of the murder, October 4, of August Braun, West Elizabeth butcher, and sentenced to death last Monday, died in the county jail hospital yesterday. The cause of death was pneumonia.

Smith was arrested with two other Negroes several days after Braun was killed in a holdup at his market. He testified they had not intended shooting the butcher but did so after the latter threw cleavers at them.

East Ohio Coal Men Named on Code Body

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, March 16.—The Eastern Ohio coal field, where is mined most of the Ohio coal, has two men on the Safety Code Commission named by Gov. George White. They are: R. L. Ireland, of Cleveland, general manager of the Hanna Coal Company, and Councilman Walter Jokovich, of Yorkville, former East Ohio official of the mine union.

Celebrated Actor, Acrobat Dies at 84

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16.—(AP).—Edward Hanlon, 84, last of the famous "Six Hanlons" celebrated acrobats and pantomimists of 50 years ago, died here yesterday. The aged actor came to this city with his wife in 1924 and, except for a three-year stay in New York City, lived here until his death.

The Actors' Fund of New York City will have charge of the burial. No date for the funeral has been set, pending word from Hanlon's four daughters and a son in the North.

Terrible Acidity Attacks Stopped. Praises Quick Relief

"Terrible attacks of acidity were so weakening that they began to get on my nerves," says Charles Loreman of Rochester, Pa. "Then I tried ACIDINE. I cannot praise it enough. I feel so relieved and better in every way. I wish everyone who is suffering acidity would try ACIDINE."

Burning acid stomach, pain after eating, belching, gas, bloating, heartburn, dizziness, and the resulting nervousness, sleeplessness, and colds won't trouble you if you use the new prescription, ACIDINE.

No other known remedy for acidity surpasses ACIDINE. Contains an effective starch digestant, diastase, which liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients neutralize burning acid, stop gas, soothe irritated stomach lining. It's instantaneous action in overcoming the troubles that commonly lead to stomach distress is more pleasing than you would believe possible.

ACIDINE is safe, harmless and pleasant for adults and children. Used by millions of people. It costs you nothing if it fails for the ACIDINE people say to every druggist. "If any customer is displeased with the results obtained from ACIDINE, give them back their money immediately. We stand behind this product absolutely." Keep ACIDINE in your home always.

4 KILLED, 15 INJURED IN AUTO WRECKS

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Attorney Mahlon E. Lewis, who is not only an instructor in the law school at Pitt but also a member of the firm of Alter, Wright & Barron, tells the story on himself. A few weeks ago, for his law firm, he had occasion to go to the Academy Theater, hall of burlesque, to serve notice on the Academy's current and dainty soubrette that the Surrogate's Court of New York state had ruled that she should file an accounting of an estate of which she was trustee—undoubtedly, incidentally, the only soubrette in the history of burlesque to be so honored.

William Pfarr

Attorney Lewis walked backstage, found nobody who wanted to put him out, and promptly asked somebody for Miss, let us say, Whiffle. He was informed that the graceful little girl who was at that moment tripping lightly over the stage in the finale was Miss Whiffle herself.

Now Attorney Lewis knew vaguely that the Academy was devoted to the refinements of burlesque but as he watched the dainty Miss Whiffle in her dance he was impressed by the frankness of that branch of the theater and thankful that he was concealed from possible identification by the dark wings.

As the curtain fell he walked onto the stage and accosted Miss Whiffle.

"Are you Miss Whiffle?" Attorney Lewis asked.

"I am," Miss Whiffle said.

"Here," offered Attorney Lewis, handing Miss Whiffle the court's notice—

Just then, for some reason or other, the curtain shot up and Mahlon Lewis was left facing an audience which was just beginning to leave—facing it, to be sure, alongside Miss Whiffle.

And as the brave lawyer turned a longing eye towards the wings and made haste to depart a voice from the audience rent the auditorium:

"H'ye Mahlon!"

From an announcement by the University of Pittsburgh: "Mathematical colloquim: Mr. A. M. Bryson will present a paper on 'Linear and Bilinear Transformations of Vanishing Jacobian in a Space of N-Dimensions' at a meeting Tuesday evening, March 17, at 7:30 p. m. in Room 104, Alumni Hall.—J. In other words, a new St. Patrick's Day feature.

We know of a German police dog that is not only a hero but a martyr. Usually when a dog's bark scares away a burglar, or awakens the sleeper in a burning house, the papers rightfully will take the dog's picture and let the waiting world see what he looks like.

But this dog we were told of lives in a speakeasy with the night watchman. The watchman was sleeping the other night when a couple of burglars tried to break down the back door. The dog barked, the burglars beat it.

And where does that leave the police dog? No place. For obvious reasons, the attempted burglary wasn't reported to the police, the papers didn't hear of it, and the dog, so far as the public knows, is just a dog.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

When you read about thousands of people clamoring to see their hero, you don't know if its Mahatma Gandhi, or Charley Chaplan. The day of the big man (physically) has passed. Here are these two little figures, the most popular two men in the world today. Mahatma in his robes and Charley in his derby. Both too smart to let the king knight 'em. Gandhi is trying to save India and Charley will do what he can for Hollywood. Mr. Hoover has found out where there was no Senators going for their vacation, and he is going there. Porta Rica.

MRS. MARGARET STEIN

WOMAN STAR BOWLER AT 73

A great-grandmother, a 73-year-old bowling enthusiast, lives her own prescription for attaining and keeping one's youthful exhuberance and vitality. Of course, it's —bowling. Knock down the pins regularly and you can't help enjoying the too often dull procedure of living. Anyway, Mrs. Margaret Stein, of 46 Sharon street, Mount Oliver, thinks so.

She plays with the bowlers of District 104, G. B. U., and is a member of a team at the Liberty alleys on Carson street. Although she has been a devotee of the sport for only a year and a half, she has attained a high score of 154, and onlookers at a casual bit of playing witnessed her execution of three strikes and a spare consecutively.

Proudly she talks of her 18 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, and of the fiftieth anniversary of her coming to America from Germany which she will celebrate in June. She'll tell you, too, that she's been a widow for 33 years, but that in spite of everything, she still is "quite jolly." She is, too.

Pershing Plans St. Mihiel Battle; 80th in Reserve

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER LXIV.

Secretary of War Baker arrived at Brest September 8, and two days later came out from Paris to my headquarters at the front, Ligny-en-Barrois.

Arrangements were then complete for the St. Mihiel offensive, and a final conference was held the afternoon of the 10th with corps commanders and their chiefs of staff.

Gen. Pershing

My diary of September 10 notes: "Germans seem to suspect an attack by Americans." An extract from the German paper, Taeglische Rundschau, follows:

"Gen. von Seibert foresees an early blow from American forces. Even though the German official communique says, 'All is well and our front holds good,' and though French and British attacks have failed and their fronts have not been enlarged lately, there is another danger against which we must guard; a danger coming from the south, on the Aisne-Vesle.

"We must reckon with America's strength and numbers we have learned to know and understand. We shall see soon in what form they intend to participate in Foch's offensive, or whether they will undertake an independent action on a great scale.

"As Americans pay strict attention to clock-like working of their machine, we must expect them to take their time while making minute studies and preparations for their attack."

The actual concentration of troops and material to form our First Army had been begun in the St. Mihiel region in early August. The greater part of the American troops involved had previously been serving at other points along the Western Front.

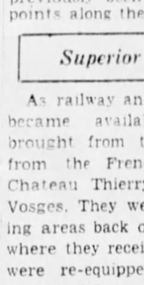
Superior Air Force

As railway and motor transport became available units were brought from the British front, from the French armies about Chateau Thierry, and from the Vosges. They were held in billeting areas back of the battle lines, where they received replacements, were re-equipped and continued their training.

Movements of certain auxiliary units and the French artillery could not be carried out until after September 2, as much of the transportation which came from the French was in use farther west.

Because of the scarcity of roads and the necessity for the crossing of columns, complete march tables for this assembly had to be prepared by First Army headquarters. The concentration was conducted with efficiency and celerity, and the organization of the First Army was completed in these areas back of the front lines.

The next problem was the movement forward to the battle line. Beginning at the end of August all combatant units were quietly moved up near their proper places in line.



Gen. Mitchell

The aviation force, consisting of nearly 1,400 planes under Gen. Mitchell, was the strongest assembled during the war up to that time. It included the British Independent Bombing Squadrons under Gen. Trenchard, which Marshal Haig had generously sent, and which were particularly useful for attacking important rail centers in rear of the enemy's line. It also included a French air division of 600 planes, which Gen. Petain had placed at our disposal. This force gave us a superiority over the enemy in the air which was maintained throughout the offensive.

A number of heavy and light tanks had been promised by the French and British for this attack, but a few days before the battle it was found that few light tanks and no heavy ones would be available. In tanks we had only 267, all of French manufacture, although 154 were manned by American troops.

In addition to the American divisions assembled for the battle, four French divisions, three of which were then serving under the French Second Colonial Corps around the tip of the salient, were assigned to our army for the operation.

The total strength of the First Army when ready for battle was about 550,000 American and 150,000 French troops.

The engineers were on hand with personnel and material to begin the reconstruction of roads and light railways in the wake of our advance. The signal troops were there to extend communications. Arrangements for medical aid were ready, many installations having been taken over from the French, who assisted us materially in this work.

The task was greater because of the size and shape of the salient, which made it necessary for us to

ACCUSE WOMAN IN BANK LOSS

Pearl Ida Ferguson, 37, of 2318 Woodward avenue, Brookline, former teller in the Dormont Savings and Trust Company, was in the county jail today in default of $10,000 bail to await a hearing late today before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan on a charge of embezzlement. She was arrested late Friday by Constable William Duncan, of Flanigan's office, on an information made out by John D. Swigert, state banking inspector. An investigation of the bank's books revealed that the woman had embezzled $6,000, according to Swigert.

According to Duncan the woman was preparing to leave for the South when he arrested her.

Officials of the bank said that Miss Ferguson left the employ of the institution several months ago. Her accounts recently came under scrutiny of the officials and the audit was started.

ODD BITS IN MEXICAN EXHIBITION

Brilliant Hues, Primitive Materials, in Mexican Arts on Display

By PENELOPE REDD

A stick, stone, handful of clay, or a few blades of rush, combined with Mexican imagination, produce an exhibition of the decorative arts whose beguiling ways few will resist.

A second exhibition of Mexican art is now on view at the Kaufmann galleries. The collection bears the distinction of being selected by Fred Leighton, long engaged in assembling the arts of the American Indian.

Mexican art has, of course, greater range.

The decorative arts of the Mexicans have a peculiar, homely appeal in our synthetic civilization. Accustomed as we are in our own modern decorative arts to the blending of mysterious metals and materials simulating wood, we are not prepared for the frank and lusty furniture of the Mexicans. They use primitive goatskin and pliable willow to merge into strong, comfortable and aesthetically pleasing furniture.

Penelope Redd

They hollow wood into the shallow batea, the shape of greatest convenience for a dish. Or simpler yet, a gourd is chosen and cut open. Either will be lavishly lacquered in naturalistic designs, frequently flowers.

Textiles, woven with waterproof closeness, in engaging geometric designs, contrived in colors triumphantly clashing, establish a brilliant background for hundreds of small objects.

In this collection, as in that sponsored by Senator Dwight Morrow and recently seen at Carnegie Institute, toys are of equal importance with pottery and glasswares.

The toys include clay modeled into all the fruits and animals. Literally the "purple cow" of the limerick is among those present.

The Leighton collection will be exhibited through the next two weeks. Many who loitered at the Morrow show will find much that is fresh in this festive decorative loot from Mexico.

TAX OFFICE SET FOR INCOME DELUGE

Extra Clerks Work Late To Care for Final Day Rush of Revenue Payers

Today is the last opportunity for filing income tax returns. Extra clerks are on duty at the office of H. D. Heiner, collector of internal revenue, and will be working until midnight to permit the last day taxpayers to file the returns for 1930. This is the final day the returns may be filed without a penalty being added.

The law specifies that March 15 is the last day without a penalty, but inasmuch as the date fell on Sunday, the returns will be accepted until midnight tonight.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—(AP.)—Four million citizens had until midnight tonight to file income tax returns for last year with internal revenue bureaus.

Officials estimated $525,000,000 would flow into the Treasury with the returns, which must be accompanied by at least one-fourth payment of the total due. Last year the first quarterly payments reached $628,000,000.

Starting in a bathroom on the second floor of the Wright home flames spread quickly throughout the building, forcing Merle Wright, a brother, Jack, and a 4-year-old baby to flee, clad only in their night clothes.

DIVES IN RIVER AFTER CRASH

Suffering from exposure as a result of plunging into the Monongahela River from Lock No. 1 in an alleged attempt to escape arrest, police say, Herman Quast, 19, of 5408 Rosetta street, today was confined to Mercy Hospital.

Quast is said to have failed to stop after his automobile struck several other cars and a pedestrian in Center avenue near Reed street last night. In his effort to escape, police say, Quast almost ran down Patrolman Edward Sweeney, who pursued in another car.

At South Twenty-second street, where he abandoned his machine on the bridge, Quast ran down a flight of steps to Lock No. 1. Here, police say, he dived into the river when Patrolman Sweeney approached. Rivermen and the officer fished him out of the stream and he was taken to the hospital. Police said a city physician pronounced him under the influence of liquor.

The pedestrian struck by Quast's automobile was Max Levine, of 2414 Center avenue. He suffered an injury to the ankle.

FAMILY AIDED BY POLICE

Stranded here when their automobile broke down en route to their home in Highland Park, New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Thompson, and their two infant children were aided on their way by the Fraternal Order of Police, who furnished them with bus tickets to their destination.

Thompson told police that he and his family were traveling from California, where they had gone five months ago for Mrs. Thompson's health. He was unable to find work in the West and they decided to return home. Their car brought them to Pittsburgh but broke down here. They had been two weeks coming from California.

They were lodged and given food in Central Police Station, and the matter was brought to the attention of officials of the Fraternal Order of Police. Thompson had been a policeman in his home town before his western trip. They were furnished with transportation and started on their way home.

MYSTERY LIGHT HERE PUZZLES SKY GAZERS

Queries Deluge Newspapers; Glare Believed Reflection From Furnaces on Clouds

Hundreds of persons in many sections of the city, particularly in the East End and boroughs beyond, last night deluged newspaper offices, the weather bureau and Allegheny Observatory with telephone calls asking information on two streaks of light visible in the sky for several hours.

First signs of the mysterious lights came shortly before 8 p. m., when a single glare appearing about a yard long, was seen above Wilkinsburg. Half an hour later it disappeared, only to reappear further to the south. This time it was longer and brighter. Later two lights were visible—one white and the other of a fiery hue.

Officials of the Weather Bureau and the observatory said they could find no trace of celestial disturbances, and expressed the belief that the lights, which they said were invisible to them, were the result of the glare of mills on low-hanging clouds, or the reflection of powerful lights at some flying fields.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folks Entertain Artists

Adding quite a few dashes of interest to the social whirl nowadays is the arrival in town of artist friends of society folk.

Catherine Meredith, who is appearing in "Lysistrata," opening tonight at the Alvin, is the house guest of the James Duncan Monroes and their attractive daughter, Elinor, and will be here for a fortnight. There'll be some informal small affairs given for her, I understand.

I might add that Elinor announced yesterday that her marriage to Gaston Keeler, son of the William H. Keelers, of Albany, N. Y., would take place Wednesday, April 8, in the Monroe home.

To return to artists, I want to mention that the B. B. B. Townsends, of Sewickley Heights, entertained in their home yesterday afternoon with a tea honoring Lily Pons, who'll sing tonight at Syria Mosque. * * *

Last hour news of many entertainments comes from Miami Beach, where the season will be officially ended with the rising of the sun on Easter morning.

Among the many fetes given there during the past week was the dinner the T. Coleman Wards gave in the Lincoln Hotel. Among their guests were Mrs. Ward's sister, Mrs. Feliz E. Blackburn, of Birmingham, Ala.

Hosts In South

The Robert Van Cleves, of Erie, will give the rehearsal dinner, and Mrs. Jay Spencer, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., will give a luncheon the day of the wedding for the out-of-town guests. * * *

Mrs. Catherine D. Sheaff, of Mt. Lebanon, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Barbara Hall Sheaff, to Harold R. Popp, of Hutchinson, Minn., which took place February 24. Edward Gansen, fraternity brother of the bridegroom, was the best man, and Miss Catherine Barker, of Salem, Ore., was the bride's only attendant. The bride attended Ohio Wesleyan and is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Popp is a senior at the University of Wisconsin and is a member of the Acacia fraternity. * * *

February Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Gordon, of Imperial, Pa., have made known the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Nancy N. S. Gordon, and Ezra W. Savage, of Milwaukee, Wis. No date has been named for the wedding. * * *

EXHIBIT OPEN, WALES RESTS

BUENOS AIRES, March 16.—(INS.)—The Prince of Wales and Prince George, wearied by the strenuous program they fulfilled in opening the British trade exhibition here Saturday, sought rest today on the Argentine pampas and rubbed elbows with the picturesque gauchos.

The princes spent Sunday at Volta Ranch, in Buenos Aires province, reputed to possess the finest collection of prize pedigreed livestock in the world. They expected to continue to Cordoba today to another vast ranch, remaining there until Wednesday or Thursday before returning to the capital.

From Buenos Aires they will continue to Montevideo for a visit of two days before going to Brazil and home.

The royal party left the capital by airplane.

The prince's mission in opening the British trade exhibit was completed Saturday. The exhibition is in full swing now.

FORD URGES PAY FOR STUDENTS

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 16.—(AP.)—Paying young people to go to school is advocated by Henry Ford.

In an interview here the automobile manufacturer expressed at length his opinions on both education and diet, but on the latter subject he admitted his own menu might be disagreeable medicine to other folk. In education, however, he was very positive in urging the establishment of vocational schools, which paid their pupils as a remedy for what he described and decried as wasted effort by school children.

Mr. Ford would combine practical and technical instruction with the teaching theory. Young people, in all cases, should learn to read and write and gain a solid foundation along these lines, he said.

Girl Just Escapes Burial, Reviving In Coffin

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 16.—(AP.)—A dispatch to La Nacion from Los Angeles in the province of Biobio, said a 22-year-old woman, apparently dead for two days and nights, "came to life" in her coffin, thereby escaping burial alive by three hours.

A physician said the young woman suffered from a case of prolonged catalepsy. He added she would have revived in the coffin had she been buried.

Relatives and friends had neared the end of a period of mourning when she moved her arms and head and opened her lips saying:

"Please give me a glass of water."

COUNTY LEADS IN GAS SALES

Allegheny County, with 50,000 fewer automobiles than Philadelphia County, led all districts of the state in gasoline sales reported to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles during February, the Pittsburgh Motor Club announced last night. With reported sales of 10,154,583 gallons, Allegheny led Philadelphia by 794,742 gallons.

Pennsylvania showed a gain of 6,213,179 gallons over the same period in 1930. Allegheny County alone reported a gain of 2,615,021 gallons, the statement revealed. Automobile owners will save approximately $200,000 per month with the retail price reduction of 2 cents per gallon made by leading gasoline distributors during last week.

Sir Henry Bell, 82, Shipbuilder, Dies

REDHILL, Surrey, Eng., March 16.—(AP.)—Sir Henry Bell, retired ship owner with interests in South America, collapsed today in a railway car on the way from Redhill to London and died shortly after he was taken from the train. He was 82. His wife, whom he married in 1883, and who died in 1895, was the former Lizzie French Eastman, daughter of T. C. Eastman, of New York.

FRENCH HONOR BRIAND

PARIS, March 16.—(Universal.)—In his favorite retreat at Cocherel, Aristide Briand, sturdy Breton who has become one of the world's most celebrated living diplomats, quietly enjoyed the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into public life, yesterday surrounded by fellow-members of the present French cabinet.

To Briand, holding his twenty-fifth ministerial portfolio, falls the lot of a quarter of a century of almost continuous cabinet service. For, although he has been foreign minister continuously since the fall of the French government which put through the Versailles treaty, he owes his continuity of service to successive appointments by the kaleidoscopic sequence of French ministers.

At Cocherel, where the doughty diplomatic warrior fishes, dreams, and meditates on the peace of Europe," his friends say his "bete noir" is the telephone which connects him with his office at the Quai d'Orsay.

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

Universal Service Society Editor.

NEW YORK, March 16.—It seems but yesterday that Gladys Vanderbilt, youngest daughter of the dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt, was united in matrimony with Count Laszlo Szechy on that very cold day in January in the chateau-like structure at Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, which formerly was the Vanderbilt home, but since has made way for a commercial building.

Yet it is all of 23 years since Gladys, who is the most ultra of Mrs. Vanderbilt's children, became the wife of the Hungarian nobleman who since 1922 has been Hungarian minister to the United States. And soon she and he could well be issuing invitations to the marriage of their second daughter, Countess Alice Szechy.

For Alice and Count Bela Hadik, of Budapest, whose betrothal was announced on February 14, have decided to be made as one on April 11 in Washington, D. C., rather than defer their nuptials until they return to Hungary, as originally planned.

The future Countess Hadik, a niece of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt—through her father, is related to several of the most powerful Hungarian families—families whose estates in the former Austro-Hungarian empire were among the most extensive.

The bride-to-be is a talented musician, a linguist and an enthusiastic sportswoman. For a year she attended the National Cathedral School in Washington, and studied also in Germany, Hungary and England. She was graduated recently from a convent in London. Countess Alice has four sisters.

Girl Scouts Plan Day 'At Home'

It is to be an all-day affair, from 10 o'clock until 5. * * *

The legislative forum will meet as usual in the Allegheny County League of Women Voters' headquarters tomorrow afternoon. The discussion will be led by Mrs. Kenneth M. Gould and a plan is to be formulated for active legislative work.

The girls' debating team of the University of Pittsburgh will match wits with the girls from Bucknell College, on the question, "Unemployment Insurance," in the Municipal Building at Forest Hills, on Friday evening. Not only members of the League of Women Voters are invited to hear them, but all the men and women of Forest Hills who are interested in the subject are privileged to attend. * * *

Mrs. Penn S. Spangler, a former president, is scheduled to present one of the papers before the Woman's Literary Club of Bellevue, when it meets tomorrow with the president, Mrs. John L. Mrs. Fred Brown is associate hostess. * * *

DESIGNERS PRESENT NEWEST CREATIONS IN SPORTS FROCKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 16.—The game of wearing the most becoming sports frock is again added to other enjoyable pastimes. For last year we did not see so much of the orthodox sports frock, this being perhaps our reaction from the severe styles that we wore for so long. Many of the leading designers altogether ignored the sports frock proper. But this season it is another story. Already important collections are featuring honest-to-goodness sports frocks and they have already appeared on the Riviera in large numbers, and no doubt also have been seen in Florida. * * *

THERE IS a charm and daintiness about the new sports frocks that is most becoming. The sensible skirt length and width has been of course retained, thus removing the principal objection against the skimpy frock of a few seasons ago that essayed to glorify the knee, but hardly succeeded in its needless task. Many nice frocks, too, are featuring the gilet, the two making a neat and businesslike ensemble. * * *

WE HAVE CAPTURED for today's page two sketches of models that are the newest thing in sports wear. The one to the left is by the fine old house of Redfern and is of white shantung cut in flaring pieces joined with fagotting. There is a narrow shantung belt and a cheerful yellow crepe tie and of course the sleeves are short. * * *

THE SPORTS ENSEMBLE to the right is from Jane Regny, who has for so long held the sports clothes banner aloft and is today recognized as the leader in creating this type of costume. Over the tennis frock of white silk pique is worn a sleeveless gilet of bright green flannel. Stitched piecings and patch pockets lend a smart tailored air to this trig little waistcoat that is not only useful, but most youthfully good-looking.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has found a simple, easy method to double the wear of silk hose and undergarments. These articles, worn next to the skin, wear out doubly fast because of the perspiration and other body excretions which soften and rot the silk.

This lady found that soap and water were inadequate for washing such articles. She recommends when washing silks to add a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash and rinse as usual. This method not only cleans thoroughly and quickly but makes silks like new with revived colors and pleasing freshness. The difference in results over the use of soap and water alone will amaze you. It means longer life—real economy.

Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, gloves and ties. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

ARTHUR PRYOR'S BAND OPENS RADIO CONCERT SERIES TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

The crash of cymbal and oom-pah of bass horns has the greatest following in radio, yet few sponsors offer martial music. Why? CBS took a vote in 25 states recently, and the score resulted: Band, 100 per cent; orchestra, 97 per cent; voice, 92 per cent; piano, 80 per cent. Being a son of Scorpion and therefore influenced by the sign of Mars page 63, paragraph 4, Lorna Fantini), we like lots of boom boom. Hence a fanfare for Arthur Pryor's Band, WJAS at 11:15 tonight.

To fully appreciate the American premiere of the opera "Wozzeck" via WCAE Thursday, hear Leopold Stokowski's explanatory talk on WEAF at 7:30 tonight.

As independent as she is beautiful, Countess Olga Albani refused to allow us to pay her dinner check when in Pittsburgh not long ago. An old Spanish custom, perhaps. She makes a good all-Herbert concert a wee bit better (WCAE at 9:30).

Francis X. Bushman—what an idol he was years ago at 10 cents admission!—was interviewed for a few minutes yesterday at 5 o'clock. Grateful for the unusual telephone response, he agreed to do a modicum of "Ben Hur" on Lou Abel's KQV program at noon tomorrow.

QUESTION A DAY:

Is there a saxophone in the present arrangement of the Amos 'n' Andy signature song?—C. K., Homewood.

"Howdy" Clark, WJAS engineer-announcer, spent most of last night on the west coast. He logged in succession KNX, KFI, KHJ, KEX, KPO, KYDL and just for fun went to Vera Cruz for ZETF. CKGW at Toronto (off its wave) made this last feat a little difficult.

Weber and Fields were funnier than usual in their visit to the capital Saturday night. Weber was perplexed to know the name of the "building with the pineapple on top of it."

They're still praising Jeannette MacDonald for the way she sang "Indian Love Call" last week.

John B. Kennedy said:

"Pay your income tax Monday and be Uncle Sam's host; don't pay it and be his guest."

We wonder if Pittsburgh firemen look around for their iron hats when they hear Art Kassel's siren signature song via WENR.

H. Warden Wilson was a perfect "Rudy Vallee" with the Boswell Sisters last night (WJZ).

A. R. W., Dormont—Location of transmitters has much to do with blanketing and "dead spots." The Pittsburgh area, because of its topography, presents a greater problem than any city in the United States, yet a recent investigation showed that we have better conditions here than elsewhere. This is due to superb engineering and research by KDKA, WCAE, WJAS and KQV.

Jimmy Joy succeeds Tom Gerun at KDKA and the William Penn next Monday. Tom goes to Gotham to make recordings, then to his native San Francisco.

Interference with Pittsburgh police signals has much to do with KQV's request to move their transmitter to Aspinwall or another section of the city. KQV signals blanket short wave transmission in downtown sections, it was discovered in recent tests. KQV managers realize also that a new location will benefit their audience.

Nothing more beautiful last night than Ann Leaf playing "Persian Market" on the Columbia "Nocturne." Hear her with Ben Alley, tenor, on WABC at 12:30 tonight. Also Ben Bernie at 11:30.

That meteor in the sky may have been the antenna on Mars or the farewell of "Lightnin'" or Clara Lu 'n' Em's conception of "Lindy and Anne" traveling to the moon.

WJAS gives St. Patrick's Day a real shamrock atmosphere with the broadcast of President Cosgrave from Dublin at 12:30 tomorrow.

Tom Noonan (God bless him!) has two wooden legs on stock now for unfortunates. His bright cheery program via KQV is Sunday's sunshine.

Substitution of an advertising manager as announcer for the Park concert on KDKA was a very poor move. We anticipate the return of Walter Myers.

A microphone extended 60 feet from the floor and 10 feet from the proscenium, brought Bernie Armstrong's concert from the Stanley Theater yesterday. Credit to Bill Hauser and other KDKA engineers who studied the acoustical situation thoroughly and accomplished more with one microphone than most engineers do with six.

Bernie has a good signature in the "Largo" and his playing of Herbert's "Fluerette" and "Air de Ballet" was entrancing.

Don't miss the Empire Builders at 10:30 on KDKA—lots of sound effects; try Jane Dillon, the impersonator, enacting three parts in a play on WTIC at 8, and Walter Seifert, the organist, on WTIC at midnight.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Introducing "Seth Parker" last night the NBC announcer said we would hear the folks singing at Jonesport, Maine. There was considerable conversation among the neighbors for almost a minute when the program opened. However, that's forgiven for the wonderful singing later on and Cephus' criticism of "the stingy who put chicken feed in the collection box when I wasn't lookin'."

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, March 16.—The statisticians of the studios in their exhaustless surveys have discovered that it is the aged Lotharios who insist on dance music played in rapid tempo and, conversely, flaming youth which demands a soft and measured note.

The aged Lotharios do not wish to admit defeat, do not wish to show young love they cannot withstand the excitements of the jazz age. And so their cry is ever for faster music. And a snap of the fingers to you, Joe College.

Can't you hear them? Can't you hear them gasping—"We have the shekels . . . and the experience . . . and the wisdom. We should dance with tears in our eyes? Not while there's a kick left in the old legs."

* * *

The eternal conquest of age and youth thus has its microphonic aspect. It is one of the most spectacular battles in radio. And B. A. Rolfe and Guy Lombardo are its chief protagonists.

* * *

While Lombardo is the jazz god of youth, Rolfe is the patron saint of those who are having a last fling, who should be making peace with the world but who insist, strangely, in dying, literally, with their boots on. And how does Rolfe work his magic? By playing tunes—mostly old ones—in a fast and frenzied pace, a pace calculated to whip up the blood, if not the vanity, of the decrepit.

On with the dance. And off, if possible, with arterio sclerosis.

Rolfe's dance tunes, our operatives report, are selected for the most part by the program's sponsor who wishes—and he sees that his wishes are carried out—only those pieces that have been tested thoroughly in the Broadway fires. The sponsor, so the story goes, has never seen his band, prefers to preserve the illusion about it he has cultivated. His only contact is with Rolfe. During the morning rehearsals of the band the sponsor and his friends gather in a large room at the N. B. C. listen to the swirl of jazz, dance to it with young women hastily assembled from adjoining offices. The occasion marks a welcome breathing spell in the weekly routine of business.

* * *

Business happens to be conducted in most radio studios in a manner bizarrily foreign to the usual concepts. Letters are dictated, written, dispatched telephones are answered, errands are run, interviews and audition are given—all to the accompanying distraction of loudspeakers. The assisting saxophonists do not often fit the action. Seldom does a note of "Happy Days Are Here Again" echo through the board room when million dollar contracts are being signed. On the other hand, when no new commercial sponsor looms in sight there is inexplicably no comforting note of "Look for the Silver Lining."

* * *

Yet, radio sets going full blast, sending out dance tunes, string trios, sopranos, talkers by the dozens, seem, if anything, to provide a unique morale to the palaces of the microphone rajahs. They appear to fit a special need of the jazz age. They supply pep. They prevent spirit from being depressed. On the contrary, they are a new industrial tonic, stimulating workers to a belief that life is not as real, not as earnest as it seemed in Longfellow's time.

The very fact that the microphone rajahs are among the few business men who are able to point to vastly increased profits in 1930 shows the value of the stimulation that radio gives.

* * *

Among the most cherished affections of radio today is the popular song as now conceived and written in the gold fields of Hollywood. Gone is the old Broadway bathos (spell it with a b, printer); the lazy rhyming of "spoon" and "moon" and "love" and "turtle dove." The melody men, herded in the Hollywood hills, are not only more industrious than when they once gathered in the lofts of Forty-fifth street—they are more painstaking.

TEACHER TACKLES COUGH

Doesn't Miss a Day of School

"Right before exams I caught a cough. I just hated to stay home and give my class to a substitute. Another teacher recommended Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. When I got home I started to tackle my cough with the syrup. In just a few minutes and I was breathing easier, my throat felt better, I was coughing less. That very night I got well. Went back to school next day." Mrs. L. Stone, 915 West End Avenue, New York.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Most Jealousy Is Nothing But Self-Love

Jealousy has been messing this column up pretty lately.

First it was Babe whose Sweetie loves her so much he couldn't trust her to hear him tell it—and who went into tantrums on the rocks if she so much as glanced at another human.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I am writing you a letter which really concerns two of us, and we will both be waiting patiently for an answer. So please don't throw this in the waste basket. It means a lot to us.

Unusually Jealous

"Now to get to the problem.

"I have the most wonderful sweetheart in the world that is my world at least, and that means in both beauty and disposition. But we are always arguing, and I will admit that most of the time it is my fault—because I am unusually jealous at all times, even when she is sitting right beside me, reading a newspaper. I am jealous of that newspaper or book as the case may happen to be.

"I am even jealous of the time she gives to her own sisters.

"I have tried in every way I can think of to cure myself of this sickness, as I call it, but I just can't seem to control it try as I may, even though I really am certain that her love for me is as true as can be.

"Please answer us, as we are both deeply interested in what you may have to say.

"What is wrong? Can you tell me? Please help me. I want to cure myself of being like this, but I don't seem to know how.

"FRITZ."

Do you really want to know the truth about what ails you, brother? And can you take it on the chin when you get it?

Wants to Hog Spotlight

What ails you is not love for the Girl Friend—but mad infatuation for yourself. You want to be big I. You want to hog the spotlight. And you have selected the G. F. to be your pet and permanent audience. You think you've chosen her because you love her—but you've really chosen her because you love you—and you think she'll help promote your pet interest. Naturally then, when she puts a dot or speaks to her sister or reads a paper, you're peeved because she has, for the moment, neglected your big act. And you call it jealousy. It's really outraged vanity.

How did you get that way? Well, sonny, most humans can get that way with very little urging. It's a racial failing of ours. But there may be a deeper reason in your case than plain conceit.

Many men use their sweethearts as a compensation for cowardice and laziness as well as a gratification for vanity. Many a man (and a woman, too) is too lazy or too timid to tackle life on his own. He longs for adventure, for laughter, for color and drama, but hasn't sufficient spunk or imagination to get them for himself.

And so he hangs the job on the dear little woman.

Must Alter Ways

He elects her to keep him excited, amused, interested, stimulated. And if she seems to fail him . . . if she now and then indulges in a little living that doesn't directly minister to him, and leaves him to his own resources, he is terrified, furious. He has been cheated! She has deserted her job! How dare she!

And that, I suspect, is how you feel, Fritz. You think the Girl Friend is existing for the sole purpose of pleasing you. She isn't. And if you continue your present idiotic demand, she'll soon become so weary, bored and disgusted that she'll desert you entirely.

First by realizing the truth about yourself—and then snapping out of it. Stop thinking of yourself as the Big Show. Stop trying to hog all the attention and begin to distribute a little. Really begin to love someone besides yourself. When once you love, you won't run amuck every time she reaches out toward a little happiness for herself. You'll want her to be happy. You'll welcome any happiness that comes your way. And your jealousy will be at an end.

The Child Who Has an Abnormal Appetite.

Do you remember when mothers attributed all the ailments of children to the presence of tapeworm? The good, old-fashioned doctor and family friend, was inclined to believe that Johnny had a tapeworm if, in spite of his tremendous appetite, Johnny did not gain weight.

Dr. Copeland

Tapeworms do cause a certain percentage of disorders, but they are not as common now as formerly. This is because of the practical application of sanitary rules to the care of our food stuffs. The laws and their enforcement by efficient health and market officials, give us safety against contaminated foods.

Intestinal worms are introduced into the body by the eating of food contaminated by the larvae, or eggs, of worms. Such larvae are found particularly in contaminated pork. Certain types are rarely found in beef and fish.

Not all such cases of human infection come from eating food. Certain forms are carried to man by the handling of dogs or cats having the contaminating substances on their bodies.

Most of the symptoms of tapeworm are vague and indefinite. Bad breath, annoying abdominal sensations, colicky attacks, enormous appetite and diarrhoea are the most common signs.

Various drugs have been used for the expulsion of the worm. They should be used only under the advice and direction of the family doctor.

Often, after treatment, the head remains and, within three months, the worm may grow to its previous size.

The cure of these cases is at times particularly difficult. That is another reason why mothers should not attempt to overcome the trouble without the supervision of a physician.

Answers to Health Queries.

N. M. Q.—What do you advise for acne?

A.—First correct your diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food.

* * *

K. N. Q.—What is the cause of dizziness?

A.—Dizziness may be due to a circulatory disturbance, to an eye or ear condition, or to some intestinal disturbance. It would be wise to have your doctor give you an examination in order to determine the exact cause.

MRS. G. C. C. Q.—After pulling hairs from the face and arms—will camphor tend to kill the root of the hair?

A.—It may. Fresh peroxide of hydrogen, frequently applied will bleach the hair, this making it less conspicuous and, it is contested by some, peroxide will retard the hair growth.

* * *

MRS. D. W. Q.—Will you tell me why my legs appear to swell during the daytime while at night they go down? What treatment would be helpful in this case?

A.—This condition may be caused by a possible heart or kidney disturbance, although it is also possible that it is due to overexertion, such as long standing, walking, etc. Have an examination so that definite advice and treatment can be outlined.

MRS. B. F. R. Q.—I have a rash on my arms, shoulders and back which is slightly itchy, occurring in light pink patches. When I become tanned in the summer, these patches remain light and are very noticeable. What would you advise?

A.—This may be due to a form of eczema, although it would be difficult to make a definite diagnosis without seeing the existing condition. Why not see a skin specialist for examination and advice?

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, March 17

A very lively and interesting day is the presage made from the predominant lunar configurations. Under high mental stimulus and the energies quickened, with Jupiter under most propitious influence, it is a time for pushing to high goals, with every prospect of advancement, financial profit and generally propitious conditions for furthering the happiness and progress of life. But be on guard against duplicity or subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of large opportunity and achievement. The mental outlook will be large, the faculties quickened and the ambitions keen. All should be pushed to high accomplishment, but be on guard against subtlety, fraud and treachery.

A child born on this day should be strong in mind and energies, quick-witted, popular, ambitious and able to undertake important enterprises, but it should be inculcated in ways of principle rather than expediency in gaining its ends.

Some Folks Never Forget Birthdays—or Remember Bills, Says Fay King

To excel exceedingly in some way is almost a sure sign that you will be dumber than dumb in some other way.

Take the man with a load of money. He is so careful in all his transactions. Has six secretaries to keep him from being hounded by pests, and wouldn't sign his name to anything without consulting h's counsel.

Yet he will meet in the most unconventional way some slick dame who soon will have him sending her the most damaging correspondence.

Take the man who astonishes his business associates by reeling off facts and figures without ever referring to a note. He'll nearly miss trying to remember into which pocket he put his ticket. Some folks never forget birthdays—or remember bills!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Senses a "Victory" Over Madge's Husband.

"You don't mean to tell me you're all able to stand up!" Harry Underwood exclaimed in burlesqued astonishment, as he came up to me after bringing in from his apartment the masculine guests to Mary's party. "From what the Dicky-bird has been persistently cheeping I expected to see all you girls laid out in swoons from starvation all over the furniture."

His tones were loud enough to be heard by everyone in the room, and as always, the effect of his nonsense was an instant loosening of the natural stiffness which pervades a festive gathering of people, the most of whom were strangers to each other. The older people smiled, the younger ones laughed outright, and listened impatiently for my response in the patent hope that it would call forth another of the big man's inimitably drawled speeches.

"You ought to know Dicky's little ways by this time," I told him. "He's simply hungry as usual. But—"

"But—" Mr. Underwood echoed. "I suppose that means so are we all," or words to that effect. Well, when the Dicky-bird gets these little friends of mine properly introduced we can grab off the food."

He lowered his voice to a murmur from the side of his mouth which only I could hear.

"Pipe the casualties!" he said.

I choked back a giggle, but I need not have feared it would be heard. No one of the schoolgirls to whom Dicky was introducing the cadets whom Harry had invited as "extra men" for the party had eyes or ears for anyone save the youths in uniform who were "bowing from the waist" with the easy assurance that the West Point regime gives to every cadet, no matter how unlicked a cub he may have been as a plebe. And these lads were second-year men and the sons of army officers, Harry had told us. Social experience had been theirs from their cradles.

They would have been attractive youths in civilian clothing, for they possessed faces which most women would dub "handsome," and they were well-set-up lads. But their uniforms added the touch of glamour which kept every girl's eyes turned in their direction when Dicky had left the cadets with them.

Four other pairs of eyes were also fixed on the cadets, but not with any appreciation of their glamour. Ronald and his three friends were too well-bred and too proud to show any dislike for the newcomers — indeed, their greeting of them was extra cordial. But the glances they shot in the direction of the cadets when they thought they were unobserved gave all the effect of clenched fists and muttered threats.

There was another pair of resentful masculine eyes in the room, but not on account of the cadets. Colin Cameron, the young talkie star, had not troubled even to speak to me, his hostess, when he entered the room with Philip Veritzen. He had stood a second just inside the door, his eyes searching the room, and when he saw Mary he went straight to her, ignoring Noel, who was talking to her, as if he did not exist. It was a striking exhibition of bad breeding, but I was not surprised, for young Mr. Cameron struck me as having only a veneer of good manners, which peeled off whenever his "spoiled boy" wishes asserted themselves, revealing the commonness of wood beneath.

But if Noel's eyes were resentful, their expression was the only indication of his feeling which Mary's fiance betrayed. Evidently mindful of his promise to me, he kept himself under iron control, and when Mary, confused and flushing, introduced him to Young Cameron, his smile was as cordial, his handclasp as hearty as though there was no hell of jealousy in his heart. He knew, poor Noel, that this was the man whom his father had selected, as we all believed, to swerve Mary's allegiance from himself, but he gave no indication of that knowledge in his demeanor.

I had the opportunity to observe all this because Mr. Veritzen, who had come directly to me as soon as he entered the room, had interrupted his greeting to me to watch the meeting of the young talkie star with Mary and Noel. That he was annoyed by something in the meeting I guessed, and wondered if perhaps Noel's perfect control of himself was galling to him. Then he shrugged his shoulders and turned to me, his eyes upon the spray of white orchids at my shoulder.

"Thank you," he said softly. "I see you decided in my favor."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Your Social Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have my calling cards printed in the following manner:

MISS R. ELINE MURRAY.

I should like to know if this is correct? I wish to use this card for all occasions, such as, with a gift. I have been striking the word "Miss" out with a neat pen and ink line. Is this permissible?

My friends have criticized me for this, as most of their cards read "Edna Warren." However, these young women attend college, and do not have the need for what I might term a "business calling card."

2. Should the cards be engraved? READER.

1. You are correct in having the title of Miss on your cards, and they, too, should have this title engraved on their cards.

It is always best, on visiting cards, not to use any abbreviations, and so I wish that you did not have to use the initial for your first name. Couldn't you either omit the first name entirely, or spell it out?

You are right in crossing off the Miss when you write a message on your visiting card. But if you just enclose the card with the gift, writing no message on it, it is not necessary to cross off the title.

2. Yes, always. It is better not to have visiting cards than to have them printed.

Table Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When entering a dining room at a formal dinner, does the gentleman offer his right arm to the lady?

2. If ushered in by a waiter, does the lady precede the gentleman?

3. At dinner does the lady sit at her escort's left, if not otherwise placed by her hostess, as might be the case at a club banquet?

4. When only two are dining (at a small table) does it matter what place at the table the lady takes? D. M.

1. Yes, if that is the custom at the formal dinners of that community. Or usually they walk into the dining room side by side, chatting, and not with the lady's hand on the gentleman's arm.

2. Yes. Although often it is more convenient, especially, if the dining room is crowded, for the gentleman to go first, to see that the table he wishes is given to him.

3. No she sits at her escort's right.

4. No.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Lanolin is an excellent healing fat to be applied to arms that have taken on pinkish gooseflesh. Apply at night, rubbing it in until it has almost disappeared. Next morning give a three-minute tapping with talcum powder.

Special boxes to contain toilet accessories are a convenience. They hold powder box and pad, rouge compact, brush and comb, lipstick, mascara and eyebrow brush. Everything in one small tray, to be carted conveniently between the bath and the boudoir. Helps to keep the upper dresser drawer tidy, so that a woman isn't afraid that she may die suddenly and relatives observe the mess and confusion there.

The warm bath is a pickup treatment after a day of varied activities, and when the merry evening is on the social calendar. Relax in the tub, take a cold shower, follow with a rubdown with a coarse turkish towel. Cover the eyes with a cold compress, place another cold compress around the throat (cover with a dry one) and lie down for 20 minutes. Cold cream the face, apply the cosmetic complexion, and the world will look brighter and fairer for the half hour of beautifying relaxation.

Before getting the spring permanent, have the hair conditioned with oil treatments. Two a week for one month will put the hair in a state of revitalization and make the old topcrest smile up and look happy. The new wave will be strong and lovely.

Know how to knock turkey tracks gally west? Anoint with a heavy cream, place the first fingers on eyelids close to the nose, sweep lightly outward to the temples, come back under the eyes to starting point. Be gentle when passing over the eyelids; tissues there are delicate.

Hurry and worry should have no place at the festive board. Eating should be a pleasure, relaxation. The business girl, after a day of frenzied activities, should rest before eating her dinner, and she should rest after eating her dinner, and she should eat slowly. What goes into the tumtum and the circumstances under which it is taken, have much to do with the health of the complexion, brightness of the eyes, ginger of step and state of the nerves. Food is fuel that runs the human machine and, for proper assimilation of food, neither body nor mind should be in a state of tension.

A. E. F. LEADER DESCRIBES HIS BATTLE ORDERS

organize two systems of supply. One of these was to serve troops operating against the southern face and the other to serve those attacking from the west.

The large number of preliminary arrangements were completed expeditiously and efficiently, and the First Army was ready to undertake its first independent operation. Except for some delay in the arrival of part of the French heavy artillery, the attack could have been made as early as September 10.

Thick Woodland

The St. Mihiel salient lay between the Meuse and the Moselle rivers, and was roughly outlined by the triangle Pont-a-Mousson, St. Mihiel, Verdun. On the western side of this area the wooded heights of the Meuse extended along the east bank of the river. East of these heights lies the broad plain of the Woevre, with its large forest areas and numerous lakes and swamps.

High wooded bluffs follow both banks of the Moselle, and the deep ravines and heavy forests on the western bank offer difficult terrain for offensive operations. Between the Moselle and Meuse rivers the only stream of any importance is the Rupt de Mad, which flows northeast through Thiaucourt and empties into the Moselle.

The principal forests in the plain of the Woevre are the Bois le Pretre, the Bois de Mort Mare and the Bois de Vigneulles. From the heights of Loupmont and Montsec and from the steep eastern bluff of the Cotes de Meuse practically every portion of the plain is visible.

The possession by our Army of the eastern edge of the heights of the Meuse northwest of Les Eparges was a distinct advantage to us.

Farther south the enemy held large sections of these heights, which gave him not only important observation stations but also means for concealing masses of artillery that could fire either against our lines to the south on the Woevre plain or to the west into the valley of the Meuse. This situation made it especially advisable for us, in order to prevent the concentration of this artillery fire in one direction, to attack the west face of the salient in conjunction with any attack against the south face.

Enemy Well Fortified

The main rail lines and roads run along the river valleys, with subsidiaries passing through the heart of the salient and along the eastern slope of the heights of the Meuse.

The Woevre is seriously affected by the wet season, which begins about the middle of September. In dry weather the water supply is difficult, while during the rainy period the country becomes flooded, rendering many of the roads impassable.

During four years' occupation the Germans had strengthened the natural defensive features by elaborate fortifications and by a defense network of barbed wire that covered the entire front. There were four or five defensive positions, the first of which included the outpost system, the fourth being the Hindenburg Line, back of which were a series of detached works, and in the rear the permanent fortifications of Metz and Thionville.

Von Hindenburg

The strength of the defenses had been fully demonstrated earlier in the war, when powerful attacks of the French launched against various points of the line had been defeated with heavy losses.

The salient was practically a great field fortress. It had, however, the characteristic weakness of all salients in that it could be attacked from both flanks in converging operations, and this was the essence of our plan. The heaviest blow was to be from the south, where there were no great natural features to be overcome, while the secondary attack was to drive in from the west to join up with the main attack in the heart of the salient.

Surprise Necessary

The principal obstacle to success was the exceptional strength of the hostile position. Aside from all the elaborate field fortifications he had constructed, the enemy had a tremendous advantage in observation and in communications. In addition, the wooden areas, with their protection for machine guns, quick firing artillery and reserve units constituted formidable obstacles.

In our original plans it had been my purpose to follow the crushing of the salient with an immediate continuation of the offensive to drive through the Hindenburg line and go as much farther as possible, depending upon the success obtained and the opposition.

As we have seen, however, the agreement reached in conference September 2, limited the operations to the reduction of the salient itself. The basic features of the plan were not altered, but its objectives were limited and the number of troops to be employed were reduced.

A tactical surprise was essential to success, as the strength of the position would permit small enemy forces to inflict heavy losses on attacking troops, and therefore no time should be afforded the enemy to bring up reinforcements. The salient had been regarded for some time as a quiet sector and was usually occupied by seven enemy divisions in the front line, with two in reserve. It was estimated that the enemy could reinforce it by two divisions in two days, two more in three days, and as many divisions as were available in four days.

From captured documents and other sources of information it seemed reasonable to conclude that the enemy had prepared a plan for withdrawal from the salient to the Hindenburg line in case of heavy Allied pressure. There was no doubt he was aware an American attack was probable.

Deception Planned

We were again concerned over reports from the French and even the Germans that an American offensive was expected in the direction of Metz, and naturally, if the enemy really expected such an attack, he would increase his strength on that front.

Any special measures the enemy should take to this end would make our task more difficult, and as anything short of complete success would undoubtedly have been seized upon to our disadvantage by those of our Allies who opposed the policy of forming an American Army, no chances of a repulse in our first battle could be taken.

These considerations prompted the decision to use some of our most experienced divisions along with the others. If it had been possible later I would have liked to have held out more of these older divisions for use in the larger offensive which was planned, but they had already been committed before it was definitely decided we should have the Meuse-Argonne front.

As the plans for the battle neared completion the duration of the preliminary artillery bombardment came up for consideration as affecting the element of surprise. Practically all previous attacks by the Allies had been preceded by severe bombardments, in some instances lasting days.

If we should pursue the same method the enemy would, of course, be fully warned of the attack. I decided, therefore, that there should be only enough preliminary artillery fire to disconcert the enemy and still not leave him time to withdraw or bring up reserves in any number before we could attack.

Offensive Outlined

A reasonable amount of firing would give encouragement to our own troops and would be especially advantageous in case rain should make the ground difficult for the tanks. The length of time for the preliminary bombardment was therefore fixed at four hours, which proved wise.

In the order of battle for the main attack, the First Corps (Liggett) was on the right, with the 82d Division (Burnham) astride the Moselle, and the 90th (Allen), the 5th (McMahon), and the 2d (Lejeunne) in order from east to west. Then came the 4th Corps (Dickman) with the 89th Division (Wright), the 42d Division (Menoher), and the 1st Division (Summerall).

Gen. Burnham

The 5th Corps (Cameron), with the 26th Division (Edwards), and part of the 4th Division (Hines), assisted by the French 15th Colonial Division, was to conduct the secondary attack against the west face. In this corps the 26th Division alone was to make a deep advance, directed southeast toward Vigneulles.

At the point of the salient was the French 2nd Colonial Corps in which were the French 39th and 26th Infantry Divisions and the 2nd Dismounted Cavalry Divisions. This corps was not to make a serious attack, but was to follow up the successes on the flanks.

Of the three American corps and nine divisions in the front line, the 4th and 5th Corps had little battle experience, and the 5th, 82nd, 89th and 90th Divisions had never been engaged in offensive combat.

80th in Reserve

Our divisions in reserve were, for the 1st Corps, the 78th (McRae), for the 4th Corps, the 3rd (Buck), and for the 5th Corps part of the 4th Division (Hines). The Army reserve consisted of the 35th (Traub), 91st (Johnston), and 80th (Cronkhite) Divisions.

On the date of the attack the enemy had in the salient proper nine divisions in line and one in reserve. These troops consisted of one division of the Metz group, four divisions of the Bavarian 1st Corps and three of the 5th Corps with one division in reserve. The sector was under Gen. von Fuchs.

Gen. McRae

The attack was difficult in that the troops on the south were required to make a change in direction of 60 degrees during the advance. The long-range guns of Metz covered the Moselle valley as far as Pagny-sur-Moselle, and the enemy's position on the heights to the east and west of the Moselle gave each other mutual support. These factors made it advisable to refuse our right and make no attempt initially to carry the heights on the west bank of the river.

The final infantry deployment along the front of departure was delayed generally until the night of September 11-12, to avoid the possibility of the enemy gaining information of the additional strength on the front by the capture of prisoners. The artillery went into position from two to three nights before the attack.

Vance's Flapping Sleeve. • Hernon Seeking Date.

PROTEST AGAINST ROBIN STAR URGED.

EVEN THOUGH HE is no longer in the National League, Joe McCarthy is urging club managers in the Heydler wheel to carry on a protest which he was wont to make from time to time, while steering the Chicago Cubs, against what he terms an unnatural and unfair advantage enjoyed by a certain pitcher in violation of the spirit if not the letter of the rule prohibiting freak deliveries. He refers to the justly celebrated undershirt with the slit right sleeve which Dazzy Vance, the Brooklyn ace, wears while on the mound.

Joe McCarthy

Pittsburghers were the first to question the legality of the now notorious garment. That was before McCarthy came into the league in 1926. They charged that the sleeve had been deliberately torn or cut for a definite and unsportsmanlike purpose; that when Vance swung his arm to pitch, the flapping sleeve caught the attention and the eye of the batsman and prevented the latter from accurately judging the coming of the ball, with the result that Dazzy's swifter was at the plate before the hitter could get a good view of it and time his cut accordingly.

BUT THE COMPLAINTS brought no action from league headquarters. McCarthy appeared to be the only manager to kick about Vance's garb afterward, and his protests also were unavailing. Dazzy has continued the practice unmolested. Each succeeding season has found him bobbing up with another undershirt doctored in the same old way and retaining the edge he has long held in making the confused batter swing more at the sleeve than at the ball.

It doesn't exactly come within the scope of the rule, as the latter stipulates only that the pitcher shall not be allowed to apply a foreign substance of any kind TO THE BALL. Vance does not apply anything to the ball itself, but there is no doubt that the flapping sleeve disconcerts the hitter, and it is a big question whether the Robin star, great pitcher though he is, would be as effective without it as he is with the advantage it gives him.

IT IS McCARTHY'S contention that the National League powers ought not to adhere to the mere letter of the rule in this case. He believes that it is none the less a violation of the regulation and that the slit sleeve is actually a foreign agency that unlawfully aids Vance in deceiving opposing hitters.

Now that he is out of the league and piloting the Yankees in the American circuit, Joe is more vigorous than ever in denouncing Vance's practice as unfair and illegal, and he expresses wonder that the other clubs in the National continue to stand for it.

"WHY DON'T THE Giants and the rest protest against it?" asked McCarthy during a training camp discussion. "They ought to keep on protesting until Vance is made to discard it. I yelled about it to President Heydler time and again, but never got any satisfaction. There is no doubt that the torn shirt comes under the head of using a foreign agency is making pitching more effective. I have been informed that a similar trick would be stopped immediately in the American League. President Barnard has ordered his umpires to prevent any such stunts. The same thing ought to be done in the National."

HAVING COMPLETED HIS coast engagement by refereeing the bout between Paulino Uzcudun and Les Kennedy in Los Angeles last week, in which Kennedy was stopped in the fourth round, Jack Dempsey will now work eastward again on another tour, and there is a chance that he may be seen in Pittsburgh next month.

When the former heavyweight champion handled a fight in Youngstown, O., several weeks ago, Manager John L. Hernon, of Motor Square Garden, had a talk with him and endeavored to book him as referee at an early show in the East End arena. Dempsey's schedule at the time did not permit of a Pittsburgh visit, but he promised Manager Hernon he would come later if possible, and the local promoter is hopeful of getting him for an April date.

Jack Dempsey

DEMPSEY'S BUSINESS MANAGER, Leonard Sacks, started East ahead of Jack to arrange another refereeing tour that will keep the ex-champ busy for the next three months, and there is a possibility that an engagement in this city will be included in the new schedule.

Sacks says Dempsey has at least 150 unsolicited bids for his services from points all over the United States. To date Dempsey has worked in 84 fights, which have drawn more than $1,000,000 in the aggregate, and he has made more than $250,000 in fees.

WITH THE POSSIBLE exception of John L. Sullivan, no fallen champion ever retained such a hold on the fistic public as Dempsey. He appears to be even more popular now than he was while he held the title, and his personality and color make him a magnetic attraction without a parallel in the ring's long list of famous referees. Dempsey surely packs them in. He is a far stronger card in most cases than the principals in the fight he is handling, and he has doubled and trebled box office receipts in all parts of the land. On account of his drawing powers and the eagerness of the fans to see him as third man in the ring, boxing commissions as a rule are glad to co-operate with the promoters and set aside the custom of withholding the name of the referee until the night of the fight.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT FROM Walnut Hall Farm, owned by Dr. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., that its famous sire of harness-racing horses, Guy Axworthy, 2:08¾, was to be retired, leads horsemen to call attention to a record which they believe will stand as a monument to carry the old sire's memory as long as light harness racing exists.

Since the close of his racing days, Guy Axworthy, now 29, an age that few horses attain, has led the harness world as a sire of extreme speed, his total of 2:10 trotters having reached 129. Of this number 31 made records of 2:05 or better, and four are inside the select two-minute circle. The latter are Lee Axworthy, 1:58¼; Guy McKinney, 1:58¼, Mr. McElwyn, 1:59¼, and Arion Guy, 1:59½.

IN VIEW OF the prominent part which former college football players are playing in the present wrestling epidemic, Joe Turner, a mat promoter in Washington, was asked if there were enough in the game to form an honest-to-goodness gridiron team.

Turner responded by naming 10 men who formerly played on varsity teams in various parts of the country and one Nick Lutze, who was a second-string gridder while in college.

Dan George

HERE'S THE LIST of ex-collegiate pigskin performers he rattled off: Don George, championship claimant, Michigan and St. Bonaventure; Jim McMillan, Illinois; Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth and Detroit; Billy Buttush, Chicago; Tiny Roebuck, Haskell; Nick Lutze, Southern California; Earl McCready, Oklahoma Aggies; Lee Wiskoff, St. Louis U.; Dan Wilson, Indiana; [illegible] Pittsburgh and Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame. Asked, of the roster disclosed that for practical football purposes the line-up left a bit to be desired, as Turner had picked 10 guards and only one back (Savoldi). But a little thing like that didn't freeze the promoter. "With a line like that and a back like Savoldi you wouldn't need any ends nor the rest of the backfield," he commented.

LOCALS TO PLAY OAKLAND CLUB TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

PASO ROBLES, March 16.—Their fine training camp season completed with a single workout this morning, the Pirates are all set to say a season's farewell to Paso Robles this afternoon. The big squad will leave for San Francisco about 5 o'clock.

Before leaving the land of the almond groves, Manager Ens let the public know that the present season was one of the most successful in the history of training at Paso Robles. Only one day was lost by rain, and the conditions for the most part were ideal. As a result the first-string players, especially the pitchers, are almost in mid-season form.

OAKLAND TOMORROW

The Buccaneers are due to open their big barnstorming schedule tomorrow afternoon in Oakland, which is across the bay from San Francisco. The Buccos will travel tonight to the Golden Gate City, where they will repair to a hotel which will shelter them for almost a week. They will make two journeys to Oakland tomorrow and the next day for the purpose of meeting the Oaks.

Oakland is the home of Remy Kremer and Stewie Clarke. The Buccos are a good card in that thriving city, and if Kremer pitches one of the contests the attendance is likely to be generous.

Finishing up in Oakland, the Buccos will take on the Detroit Tigers Thursday at the fine new ball orchard which stands as a testimonial to San Francisco. This park was opened last week, the verdict of many baseball men giving it a high rank among the good parks of the country.

The Cubs will run afoul of the Pirates in four games in San Francisco, beginning on Friday. A double-header will be played Sunday. These contests should be corkers, for the Chicago and Pittsburgh outfits need little incentive for bitter baseball. One year ago, the two teams staged a furious series in Los Angeles. Later they will stage another series in that resort city.

BUCS TOP PORTLAND

The Ensmen took the measure of Spencer Abbott's Portland Beavers in an exhibition game staged yesterday at the Paso Robles lot. The score was 7 to 6. Another fine crowd gathered, sat in the wooden stands, and cheered the two teams. The Coast Leaguers had a lot of class, the Freebooters playing out every string to win the contest.

Ira Flagstead, a Pirate of last year, was in center field for the Beavers. Flagstead was a popular member of the Pittsburgh club and his former mates were glad to see him. Billy Rhiel, Youngstown boy, played second for the visitors.

Andy Bednar, the Illinois coal miner, was the star of the Pittsburgh victory. Bednar worked the last five rounds in a scoreless manner. Ervin Brame was on the mound in the first four frames. Catcher Eddie Phillips was struck in the neck with a pitched ball, but he was not hurt badly. Adam Comorosky played a part of the game.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: LAFAYETTE WAS MADE MAJOR-GENERAL AT THE AGE OF 19—Lafayette, a youth of 19, arrived in Philadelphia, July 27, 1777. Four days later, Congress conferred upon him the rank of major-general. His great services in the cause of the American Revolution, both as military commander and as financial mediator between the United States and France, are part of the history of the United States. If Pershing did not say, "Lafayette, we are here," upon his arrival on French soil, in the late World War, at least he ought to have said it. THE EIFFEL TOWER MOVES WITH THE SUN—The Eiffel Tower, the most famous structure on the Parisian skyline, is 1,000 feet high. At that altitude a high wind will cause it to sway or vibrate considerably. It recently has been discovered that, in addition to swaying in the wind, the tower is helitropic. The sunny side of the metal in the tower is affected by the rays of the sun, causing it to twist and move with the sun. The motion is gradual and hardly observable to the sightseers on the tower, but it is continuous and more pronounced in the hot summer months than in the winter. In the hottest 24 hours of the year, the torsion reaches a maximum point of about 7 inches. As the day cools the twist vanishes. A RIFLE SPLIT IN THE MIDDLE BY ANOTHER BULLET—At the Crater Battlefield in Petersburg, Va., is a display of an old Confederate rifle that was split in the middle by a Federal bullet which entered the muzzle just as the Confederate soldier fired. The three-ringed Federal bullet can be seen still wedged in the barrel of the rifle, but the Confederate bullet was removed in 1910 by a curiosity seeker.

Sport Vignettes

Would you say that the Pirates' star left-hand pitcher, who was absent from camp until a few days ago, when he reported to take up the matter of signing for the 1931 season, took French leave? . . . Leigh Murray, who died last week and will be buried in Lebanon, Pa., today, was a well-known football end in his time, starring at old Central High School here and later at Kiski and Penn State . . . He was engaged in the steel business . . . Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight boxer, and his manager, Cy Seibert, are appearing in Father Cox's Passion Play at the Nixon Theater this week . . . It is Bert Collyer's Year Book and is chuckful of data.

CIUCI, HAGEN TIE AT 143

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 16.—(AP.)—Little Henri Ciuci, Bridgeport, Conn., chopped two strokes from par yesterday to post a 69 besides his first day 74 to tie with Walter Hagen, Detroit, for top money in the Coral Gables open golf championship with a 36-hole score of 143.

Walter, after setting a new course record of 68, stumbled over his putter yesterday and required 75 strokes for the second 18-hole tour of the Miami-Biltmore layout.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Densmore Shute, Columbus, O., followed The Haig and Ciuci, splitting third and fourth place money. Shute was out in a par 35 and back with a 37 to post a 72 alongside his 72 of the first round.

Three Eastern members of the winter golfing caravan followed on the heels of Espinosa and Shute, Craig Wood, Deal, N. J.; Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and Walter Kozak, Douglaston, Long Island, marked up 145 each to cut into the prize money.

National Indoor Net Tourney Is Resumed

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—After a Sunday off, the National indoor tennis championships resumed their course today with the prospect of another easy round for the stars.

The three French aces, Jean Borotra, Christian Boussus and Pierre Landry, still were in the running, along with seven of the eight seeded American players. Julius Seligson was kept from playing because of a broken arm.

REED QUINTET SHUNS STATE TITLE PLAY

Scott High, of North Braddock, booked to clash with Duquesne in the final game of the W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament in the Stadium Wednesday night, may withdraw from further competition in the state tourney in the event of a victory over Duquesne.

The P. I. A. A. program calls for the winner of the W. P. I. A. L. title to meet the District VIII champion, which happens to be Westinghouse, of the City League, in an inter-district game. District VIII comprises the City League, the champion of which is Schenley High and the runner-up South Hills. As neither Schenley nor South Hills is a member of the P. I. A. A., the city organization has designated Westinghouse as the league's representative in the state event.

TIME TO QUIT, SAID

Coach Johnny Reed, of Scott, today said that he and the school officials felt that the team had played enough basketball and that after the W. P. I. A. L. tourney was over, it was time to quit.

"We do not mind meeting Westinghouse, but we feel that it will not be fair to the boys, who already have taken part in 24 basketball games, to ask them to play further. I do not know what our final decision will be, but that is the way matters stand with us at present," Reed said.

In the event that Scott wins the W. P. I. A. L. title, and then decides to withdraw from competition for the year, the W. P. I. A. L. will nominate Duquesne to represent the league in the state play, but will not take the title away from Scott.

SCOTT FAVORED

It is the opinion of most of those critics, who have followed the fortunes of the two finalists this year, not only in the tourney, but throughout their regular schedules as well, that Scott will take the Dukes Wednesday, possibly by a margin great enough to make the triumph exceptionally decisive. The North Braddock combination considered the best balanced in the league, with a trio of stars of the brilliance of Tomko, Krutullis and Bache, well-braced by Ferguson and Kumo, and admirably fixed for reserves, looked very impressive in its three tourney tests. Dunbar and Scottdale were crushed under top-heavy scores. New Kensington, the scrappy defending champion, was turned back with 14 points to spare.

WINNERS IN TROUBLE

Duquesne fought through the first couple rounds in as easy fashion, but the team did not look impressive against New Castle Saturday. Last year's runner-up carved out a victory by three points, but was in trouble all the way, and until the last period, was behind too often for comfort.

Of course, the Dukes have a honest-to-goodness performer in Capt. Al Servick, who deserves to be rated with the best in the tourney. Durik, the guard, is of the unsung hero type, not very colorful or apparently brilliant, but a dependable, steady worker.

The Tipoff

Considering everything, the attendance at this year's tournament games has been very good. There were capacity crowds out for the semi-final games last week, and Ambridge and New Castle, New Kensington and New Brighton, Scottdale and Brownsville and New Castle and Monessen put good sized turnouts into the Stadium Pavilion.

With one or two exceptions, the officiating has been good. The sportsmanship has been all right too, once or twice the crowds forgetting that a man shooting a foul should be permitted to make his attempt without receiving a burst of hisses and catcalls. There have been no riots or mixups after the games.

The hardest luck player of the tourney, so far, was Tom Hurley, of New Brighton. Had Hurley's team defeated New Kensington, the Brighton forward would have been the outstanding player.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BILOXI, Miss., March 16.—The way they said this new baseball would hold down hitting, I thought Babe Ruth would have to slam one into the bleachers to get as far as second base. Well, so far as I can see, the new ball has got the same old ingredients, and they are delivering the same old results.

Nick Altrock

The experts said they would handcuff the home run kings by raising the stitches. Well, they guessed wrong again. What they need to raise are the pickets on the outfield fence.

The magnates may have made some kind of a switch in the old horsehide, but if the 1931 ball hasn't got a rabbit in it, then it's stuffed with Belgian hares.

By CARL W. SHATTO

Thousands of dollars will be at stake in a game that will hold the interest of thousands of hockey fans in five International League cities when Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets wind up their season series with London's Tecumsehs at London, Ont., tomorrow night.

The fray shapes up as a championship series rolled into a single game, for the winner is almost certain to continue on into the annual title play-offs next week. Failure will be the loser's only reward for an entire season of torrid campaigning.

INTEREST HIGH

The greater part of the interest, quite naturally, will be centered in Pittsburgh and London, but Buffalo, Windsor and Cleveland fans and players also will be jolly well interested in the outcome of the joust, for Buffalo, Windsor and Cleveland already are in the play-offs, and they want to know which team they have to meet in the championship milling.

Because of the favorable (to Pittsburgh) outcome of the games Saturday night, when the Jackets swamped Syracuse, 6-3, while London was losing to Cleveland, the Schooley icemen can almost clinch a title series berth by winning tomorrow. A victory will enable the locals to increase their lead over London from one to three points, with a single game (with Buffalo here Friday) remaining on the Pittsburgh schedule.

Because London has played one game less than has Pittsburgh, the Jackets will have to win both their remaining games to make their place in the play-offs absolutely certain. The Tecumsehs are to play in Detroit on Thursday and in Syracuse next Sunday. Should they lose either of these frays, a Pittsburgh win in London will be sufficient to guarantee the Jackets' participation in the post-season classic.

In the event that the Jackets lose in London, they still could get into the play-offs by beating Buffalo here—if London was considerate enough to lose to both Detroit and Syracuse, not at all likely.

LOCALS DEPART

Each player who gets into the title series and the owner of each club which participates in the play-offs reaps a financial harvest. Much coin in the realm, as well as honor and glory, will be at stake in the crucial fray.

The local icemen left on their last road trip of the regular season at noon today, and they left in pretty fair condition, both physically and mentally. Gordy Fraser, defense ace who wore a special brace to protect his fractured right hand in the Syracuse game here Saturday, is ready for more battling, and with the exception of Duke McCurry, badly battered in Detroit last week, other members of the squad are in top form.

M'GUIRE SHOWS WELL

Mickey McGuire stepped into McCurry's position at left wing on the starting front line in the Syracuse fray, and he teamed with Rodden and Gregg to such advantage that he probably will be kept there for the remainder of the season. McCurry will perform as a general relief man.

The Jackets will rest in a Detroit hotel tonight, and will make the short trip from Detroit to London tomorrow afternoon. President-manager Roy D. Schooley will join his stalwarts in Detroit tomorrow, and will assist Coach Charles Reid in directing the locals in their "make or break" fight.

STARS, OLYMPICS TIE

SYRACUSE, March 16.—Detroit and Syracuse engaged in a free-scoring International Hockey League game here last night and at the conclusion of 70 minutes of fast and furious playing the combatants left the ice with the count 6-all.

NATIONAL RACE DECIDED

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—The six playoff positions in the National Hockey League finally have been settled and little is left for the teams but to play out the remaining week of their schedule. With a busy week-end to complete the task of settling the playoff arguments, it was reduced to the Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons in the Canadian division and Boston, Chicago and the New York Rangers in the American group.

A few slight changes may result from this week's play, but these teams will contend for the Stanley Cup, probably in this order.

Rookie Tales

NO. 6.—AUGUSTIN JOSEPH DUGAS.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 16.—He's a lefthander all the way, is sturdy Dugie Dugas, youthful Pirate slugger, but the youngster is right in his outlook on life in general and baseball in particular.

Augustin Dugas

"We southpaws don't have to back up for any of them," smiled the little French-Canuck, who will have no trouble reading the menus in the swell hotels, for his mother and dad speak only French in their home, and a bill of fare that looks like a classical musical program to the average ball-gamer means nothing but good food and lots of it to the new outfielder.

"But I will have to admit that a lefthanded catcher is no masterpiece," said the youngster. "You see, I started out as a catcher when I played with the Sacred Heart school team in my home town of Taftville, Conn.

IS NATURAL HITTER

"We needed a receiver, so I took out enough time to turn a catching glove inside out. By doing this I was able to make it a lefthanded affair and I became a catcher. I had a good arm, but some good friend got me by the ear and led me to the pitching mound and then for some time I was a pitcher."

Dugas comes of a big family that came out of the Province of Ontario in Canada. His father was the typical "habitant," many of whom migrated to the States with a view to meeting with better success.

Augustin Joseph is one of those boys of the Paul Waner type that needs no instruction at the plate. The picture is perfect when they walk up there with the bat. Bill Hinchman was wandering about in pastoral New England when he was brought out of his poetic reveries by the sight of a stout little fellow hitting a ball a country mile over the right field fence.

STRONG-ARM THROWER

Bill's poetic sense, even among the descendants of Longfellow, Whittier, Bryant and Holmes, is likely to be cramped when he sees a good hitter, for Hinchman was a socker of renown and he knows that a long wallop covers a multitude of fielding defects. By this token, Dugas is not a finished fielder, but balls go off his left hand like a shot, so powerful is his arm. When he gets some polish he should be a dangerous candidate for a regular job.

Dugas starred for the Wichita club which won the Western League flag last season. Among his heavy total of hits were 26 homers.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Spiller, business manager of the Atlanta Southern Association Club, has announced that the attempt to organize the Dixie Baseball Association, which would include members of the old South Atlantic and Southeastern Leagues, had failed. The refusal of Macon last night to needed to form a six-club loop, to join, made final organization of the league impossible.

The Latonia Derby will remain with $75,000 added, and the Cincinnati Trophy will be increased from $7,500 to $10,000. The meeting opens June 27, and continues to August 1.

of the year. New Castle generally was credited with being the fast team; New Kensington the best dressed and Brownsville the biggest.

Possibly the most brilliant piece of individual play occurred in the Brighton-Kensington game when Hurley dribbled through the entire New Kensington team, into the basket and then hooked a pass to a teammate for a field goal.

The most disappointing entry was Ford City, which toppled from the running in the first round. It was Ford City's sixth attempt to gain the league title.

Its unfortunate that Elmer Krieling, of Braddock, was not a contestant. Krieling was the scoring leader of the W. P. I. A. L., accounting for 209 points in 19 games.

The best picker this correspondent ran into was Mac Rubenstein, of Ambridge, whose team was eliminated in the first round by New Castle. After that game, Rubenstein did not miss a guess. Wonder boys, he is with the horses?—JESS CARVER.

DUNLEVY TOPS BRIDGEVILLE IN SERIES

By TOM BIRKS

Playing a bang-up game, especially in the second half, Dunlevy won the first of a three-game series for the Western Pennsylvania challenge soccer cup yesterday at the Bridgeville Speedway, 3 to 1. The second game probably will be played up the river, and if Dunlevy again is successful, the series will be over.

When the half-way mark was reached, Bridgeville was leading, 1 to 0. Zinger scored after a few minutes play, following a brilliant corner kick by Alex Kusis.

The second half found Dunlevy playing a great game, Bob Smith and Grilli scoring in quick succession. Just before the finish, Johnny McCosky made it safe by scoring the third and last goal.

A good sized crowd was in the stands, and despite a heavy snowstorm, the field was in good shape. Bridgeville pressed and Kasis, forcing a corner, flashed the ball over to Zinger, and it was in the net. This finished the Bridgeville scoring, Grandy playing a good defensive game.

In the second half Bob Smith lobbed the ball over Darkus' head after a long siege of the Bridgeville goal, and then Grilli sent in a beauty into the corner of the net to give the upriver boys a deserved lead.

Later Jablonsky, with a shot from 30 yards, hit the uprights with Dolphi beaten—it was one of the finest shots seen in this district this season. With a few minutes to go, another Dunlevy raid netted the third goal by Johnny McCosky. The lineup:

Dunlevy—3.		Bridgeville—1.
Dolphi	G.	Darkus
Grandy	R.B.	Spart
Urbanic	L.B.	Spart
Rossi	R.H.	Cimeroli
Smith	C.H.	Jablonski

PHILLIES CLAIM WILLINGHAM

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 16.—(AP.)—Gerry Nugent, business manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, has announced that the Phillies have claimed High Willingham, an infielder, from the Chicago White Sox, on waivers. Willingham went to the White Sox from the Dallas team, of the Texas League. He is expected at the Phillies' training camp in a few days.

Camp Flashes

TAMPA, Fla., March 16.—(AP.)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, had another problem on his hands today. He has been notified by Commissioner Landis that Pat Crawford, who finished last season with the Reds, has refused to report to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, where he was sent in part payment for Mickey Heath, first baseman. President Weil was busy trying to figure out how to make up the deficit, because there is no chance of allowing Heath to return to Hollywood.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(AP.)—If the Brooklyn Robins want to do any more arguing with Arthur (Dazzy) Vance on his unsigned contract, they'll have to do it at Homosassa. The Dazzler, who thinks he's worth $25,000, left the Robins' training camp last night for his "estate" at Homosassa, prepared to repel all official offers of less than that amount.

BATTLES PICKED AS CAPTAIN OF TEAM

Tri-State All-Stars

FORWARDS

Willie Kowallis, Pitt., Ganzy Benedict, Duquesne.

CENTER

Clifford Battles, W. Va. Wesleyan (C.)

GUARDS

THE SQUAD

Centers—Peyton Telfair, Bethany; Harry Brownlee, Westminster.

By JESS CARVER

How much dough would you bet on a basketball team made up of Doc Kowallis, of Pitt; Ganzy Benedict, of Duquesne; Cliff Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan; Red Fergus, of Carnegie Tech, and either Cliff Aultman, of Geneva, or Bob Garbark, of Allegheny?

Ganzy Benedict

The selection of an all-district college team this year was no easy matter. There were no Hyatts, O'Donovans, Ryans, Lubics or Glenns on district varsities as there were last year. These chaps all were outstanding, making it comparatively easy to select at least a first all-star team.

Cliff Aultman

Doc Kowallis

To begin with, they appeared to be very few consistently good performers this year. The boys were in and outers, some of them considerably more out than in. For example, In one game, Harry Brownlee, of Westminster, would look like the best center in the country and two nights later, maybe he'd impress one as being the exact opposite. George Flading, Bethany's clever little guard, was a wow in some of the Bisons' moments of action, and in others, particularly in the two important tests with Westminster, he was just another ball player.

THE FORWARDS

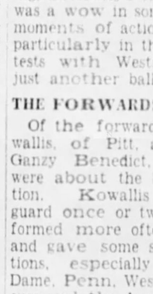
Of the forward list, Willie Kowallis, of Pitt, and the veteran Ganzy Benedict, of the Dukes, were about the best in the section. Kowallis was used at guard once or twice, but he performed more often at a forward and gave some sparkling exhibitions, especially against Notre Dame, Penn, West Virginia, Syracuse and the Army.

Benedict played a generally steady brand of ball throughout, his best game being against Geneva in New Brighton when he turned in an evening of play astonishingly brilliant.

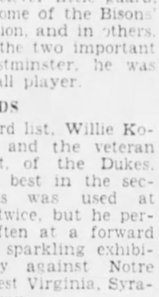
Venard Fegley, of Grove City; Timmy Lawry, of Pitt; George Nease, Tech's veteran star; Ed Sortet, of West Va.; Mike Kocheran, of Westminster and the sharpshooting Malvin Rush, of Bethany, were good forwards, certainly, but I think Kowallis and Benedict deserve the nod over the others. As second choices, Lawry and Rush would be the selections.

CENTER

The speedy, ambidexterous and all-around clever Cliff Battles starred for Wesleyan throughout the season and was generally credited as being the kingpin of centers. Brownlee, of Westminster; Telfair, of Bethany; Bartrug, of West Virginia; Kent Sole, of Geneva; Stentz, of Tech, and Albright, of Pitt, were good centers, but not as consistent as Battles and possibly not as clever in all departments.



Cliff Battles



Red Fergus

THE GUARDS

Then for the guards. Bill Fergus, of Tech, although he faltered a trifle late in the campaign, was a real star. So was Cliff Aultman, of Geneva, and so was Bob Garbark, of Allegheny. Either combination of two of the three of 'em would be well worth while.

Lindsay Montgomery, Geneva's captain; Don Smith, of Pitt; Bob (Brud) Stephens, Duquesne's standby; Willie Arture, of Pitt; Jim Leonard, of Tech; George Flading, of Bethany; Sigmund Weiner, not a bad guard at all, and Capt. Phil Rice, of Westminster, would fit in very nicely as guards . . . on any man's team. But Fergus, Aultman and Garbark were good enough to be boosted by the coaches and officials who assisted in the selection of this team. Hence they are in there. You may place 'em as you wish.

Eddie Brannon, local Negro lightweight, with a dead serious look on his face . . . will be out to seek revenge from Cowboy Eddie Anderson, of Wyoming and Omaha, who recently defeated him by a close margin in the same ring. Anderson's experience and generalship proved the determining factors in the first meeting. He Eddie Brannon did a lot of tincanning and fighting in flashes that stole the thunder away from his foe. Brannon believes he learned enough about the Andersonian style of battling in that encounter to go in and fight his fight tonight and turn the tables.

Two newcomers in Pittsburgh, the veteran Benny Gershe, southpaw featherweight, of Cleveland, and Joe Marciente, young New Yorker, do the honors in the eight-round semi-final. Harry Fine, of the Hill, and Eddie Kaufman, of Cleveland, box the second bout, and Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, and Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, are in the opener, at 8:30.

Between Rounds

Emmett Rocco, Edgewood City heavyweight, boxes Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, O., in the main bout of a show in Columbus, Ohio, tonight. Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland colored boy, and K. O. Little, also of Cleveland, are in the semi-final. Ted Yarous and Joe Trippe are billed as headliners of Oil City.

The winner of the Jocko Walters-Pat Silvers main event at the Moose Temple next Friday night has been promised a go in the same ring with Buck McTiernan, King of the local middleweights. Walters, a terrific hitter, has knocked out Al Becker and Jimmy Thomas, of Cleveland, in other showings at the Moose, and also claims victories over Nordi Smith and Frankie Pallon.

The Homewood gym, training rendezvous of local boxers since the closing of Flynn's gym, has passed out of the picture, but a new gym has been opened in Baum boulevard, near Motor Square Garden, to which the midtimers have turned their steps.

It develops that Benny Schwartz, Baltimore bantamweight, had an abscessed tooth extracted on the morning of his bout with Jimmy Thomas at the Moose Temple last Friday.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McGirr's, has completed his card for Thursday night's show by signing Lt. S. Carpenter, of New Kensington, to box Joe Barone, of McKeesport, in the second bout, and John Montemarano, of Braddock, to box Jimmy Lozier, of McKeesport, in the opener. Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Billy Alger, of Reading, Pa., are in the main bout on Sunday. Tim Noyes, of Braddock, and Brian Saka, of Donora, box the semi-final.

SACRIFICE BAN BLOW TO SWAT AVERAGES

By BABE RUTH.
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16.—That new rule about the sacrifice fly has been received by the ball players just as the writers predicted last winter at the time the change was made. They are all squawking against it. The fellow who hits around .360 or .375 believes it ends his dream of some day being a .400 hitter. The .300 hitter sees himself falling back and losing his chief argument for a better salary.

Babe Ruth

The rule came up for discussion in our clubhouse the first day the squad was all together and there wasn't a kind word for it. Even the pitchers had no argument in favor of it.

PLAYERS WAIL

I think it was a mistake to deny a hitter a sacrifice fly if he hits a ball long enough to score a runner from third. I agree with the rule makers in cutting out the sacrifice fly when a runner merely goes from first to second or from second to third.

Eddie Collins, the only player who sat in at the rule meeting, argued in favor of keeping a sacrifice fly in the game when a runner scores from third, but they voted him down. I agree with the other players that this was a mistake.

I figure the change will knock at least 20 or 25 points off the batting averages of the long hitters. By long hitters I mean Gehrig, Simmons, Foxx, Goslin, Alexander, Morgan and sluggers of that type in our league. Take fellows such as Babe Herman, Chuck Klein, Wally Berger, Lefty O'Doul, Hack Wilson, Harry Heilmann and a few more in the National. For years they were not charged with a time at bat if a long fly let a runner advance from any base. Now the time at bat will be charged.

HARD ON AVERAGES

I doubt that we will see another .400 hitter for years. Bill Terry made the grade last year, but he would have been some distance under the mark if the rule now in force had been used then. Think of all the times at bat that were not charged when his drives moved a runner along. Next year Bill could get the same number of hits on the same number of appearances at the plate and advance as many runners with long drives, but finish well below the .400 mark.

If the pitchers are helped by the new ball the batting averages will shrink anyway. This new rule on the sacrifice is a sure thing to lower all averages some more. So don't be surprised next summer if your favorite player is hitting a

Stocks Advance — Local Stock List Dull

UPWARD TREND MAINTAINED BY STOCKS

Trading Apathetic on 'Big Board' With Moderate Advances Numerous

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—The financial markets began the new week with a moderately cheerful tone, but apparently reconciled to the theory that the pace of business recovery demands patience.

Share prices maintained the uptrend started on Saturday and bonds showed somewhat better tone. Trading was apathetic, nevertheless and advances were moderate.

The most conspicuous item of news appearing over the week-end was the annual report of the U. S. Steel Corporation, signed by J. P. Morgan as chairman and James A. Farrell as president. The fact that they ended their report with a conservative note of confidence in the future was regarded in Wall Street as significant, for they made no reference to the outlook in their report of a year ago.

Despite the $3,000,000,000 turnover of funds today resulting from the income tax payments and the Treasury's new bond financing, call money was in abundant supply, reflecting the government overdraft by which it customarily pays out funds much faster than they come in for a few days after its quarterly settlement dates.

It was recalled that this operation a year ago released a flood of money in the short term market, bringing the cheapest call money since the bull market had started to cause a credit problem. This added fuel to the fires of bullish enthusiasm at that time and helped to carry the false rally in share prices of a year ago to excessive height.

Now, however, the market knows that cheap money alone cannot make prosperity. Call money today renewed at 1½ per cent, and was freely offered at 1. The lowest rate in March of last year was 2 per cent.

Production of pneumatic casings for January was 3,674,627, an increase of 30.6 per cent over the December figure. Production for January, 1930, was 4,486,077 casings.

Union Carbide Expected To Publish Its Annual Report This Week

It is expected the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation will make public its annual report some time this week. Wall street looks for the report to show net income equivalent to approximately $3 a share on the 9,221,402 shares of common capital stock outstanding. The company reported net equivalent to $2.22 a share for the nine months ended September 30 last, thus indicating that net in the closing quarter was equivalent to around 80 cents a share, compared with $1.27 a share reported for the December quarter of 1929. Net of $3 a share, if shown in the report would cover current dividend requirements of $2.60 annually by a fair margin and would compare with equivalent of $3.94 a share reported on slightly smaller capitalization in 1929 and $3.41 a share on the equivalent of 8,226,216 shares of the present stock in 1928.

Indications are that the principal steel producing centers of the country will maintain their present operating schedules this week. Reports from Youngstown district suggest an increase of 1 per cent is contemplated in that quarter, where it is expected producing facilities will move at the 51 per cent capacity rate. At all events, the three leading manufacturers there, namely Carnegie Steel, Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube will hold to last week's schedules. Republic is operating on a 58 per cent basis, Sheet and Tube at 40 per cent, and the Carnegie works, subsidiary of the Steel Corporation, at 50 per cent of capacity.

Within a fortnight or so the market will be faced with task of withstanding the probable discouraging influence on sentiment of forthcoming first-quarter statements. True, the reports of the larger corporations such as the Steel Corporation, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel and a few others will not make their appearance until the latter part of April. But the returns of the rank and file of smaller companies will begin to filter through considerably sooner, and the financial community should have a fair idea of such results well ahead of the publication of the statements of the bigger companies. It is a foregone conclusion that such results, except in isolated instances, are not going to make bullish reading. Their influence on the market will, of course, depend on the extent to which such results have been discounted.

Regardless of whether or not higher prices are warranted by fundamental business conditions, the constuctive faction is gradually working into a position where a drive against the over-crowded short interest may easily be accompanied with outstanding success.

In the opinion of a statistician for a leading investment service, who has published a book on the subject, individuals purchasing common stocks for long term investment, should give preference to blue chip stocks offering a lesser yield, rather than to second-grade issues which on account of their uncertain future trend of growth are only temporarily attractive on a yield basis.

These principles applied in 1921 would have paved the way to great fortunes, according to this source. Industries which appear to have the most promising outlook for future improvement, listed in alphabetical order, are the chemical, cigaret, electrical equipment, food and public utility, and long-term commitments in any of these groups should work out exceedingly well.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 16.—Curb stocks marked time in desultory trading today. Buying orders that had accumulated over the week-end and some further short covering following last Saturday's rally gave prices a lift during the early trading, but there was no disposition to follow up the narrow advance, except in rather isolated instances and the market became extremely quiet.

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Forbes

'Creep, Do Not Run' Advised by Highest-Ups.

—By B. C. FORBES—

MID-MARCH has brought no decisive change in business conditions. Favorable developments have slightly outweighed unfavorable developments. The improvement in sentiment is more pronounced than the improvement in actualities. The latter is negligible rather than convincing.

Mr. Forbes

IT IS encouraging to note that the general price level last week for the second time this month moved modestly upward. As much could not have even been said at any other time since the down trend began in the middle of 1929.

Volume of business, however, still leaves much to be desired. Bank clearings show no pronounced gain. Neither does railway traffic. Consumption of electric energy runs below a year ago. The shrinkage in unfilled steel orders is not conducive to unalloyed optimism, although operations have expanded modestly. Copper, lead and tin have suffered a modest relapse. Retail trade drags along sluggishly in most directions, with some quickening here and there. Recovery in building operations is not particularly pronounced. Oil prices have been further reduced in certain sections.

Farm prices have developed no uniform strength. Although the cotton textile industry reports some improvement, raw cotton receded last week. Rubber also fell back and is worth only 50 per cent of the price current a year ago. Automobile prospects have brightened somewhat.

THE MOST encouraging news concerns employment. Secretary of Labor Doak reports that employment increased 1.4 per cent last month over January and that wages distributed rose 7½ per cent. With the opening of spring less than a week off, a distinctly more hopeful view is taken of the employment situation.

The writer would suggest, however, that agencies for the relief of unemployment continue in existence and not disband at the opening of April. It should be recalled there was considerable unemployment even when the boom was at its height. We thus witnessed the novel spectacle of inordinately active business and above normal unemployment. It is hardly reasonable to expect that the advent of spring will mean the disappearance of the unemployment problem. Indeed, the probability is that an awkwardly large number of workers will remain idle even though betterment in business develops as satisfactorily as is generally hoped for.

THE STOCK MARKET, after its January-February rise again receded last week.

As previously told here, there was opposition in the highest financial circles to anything savoring of runaway speculation. This year's sharp rise was brought about mainly by professional operations, not by outside investment buying. The character of trading showed little change last week. A few stocks were conspicuously active, indicating manipulation. But purchasing by small investors or other investors continues rather meager, certainly not sufficient to warrant any spectacular marking up of quotations.

More encouraging was the ready absorption of very large blocks of new bonds of the highest grade. Manifestly there is an abundance of money available for conservative investment. Banks which reduced themselves to an extraordinary liquid condition are now more disposed to invest funds. The expectation is that offerings of domestic bonds will continue rather heavy and that the American market will shortly be open to foreign buyers.

Incidentally, international bankers view with favor French participation in new financing for various European governments. Theorists claim that international lending on a large scale by both America and France is essential for the resumption of world prosperity.

IN SHORT, the prevailing view in most influential quarters is that the patient can and should slowly recuperate, but that any hasty attempt to run rather than creep would invite a fresh setback.

STEEL'S SHARE NET $9.12

NEW YORK, March 16.—(AP)—The United States Steel Corporation today reported that combined gross sales and earnings declined $329,000,000 in 1930 from the post-war peak touched in 1929.

In its annual pamphlet report to stockholders made public today, the corporation says the total value of business in 1930, which was the most unprofitable in eight years, amounted to $1,180,934,971, against $1,509,584,637 in the previous year.

The audited report made only a slight change in 1930 net income as previously announced.

It was officially given as $70,201,894, after preferred dividends of $28,219,677, equal to $9.12 a common share against $172,531,349, or $21.19 a share in 1929.

Current assets at the end of the year stood at $576,373,097, including $117,203,288 in cash, against current liabilities of $108,873,454, or a ratio of more than five to one. This compares with current assets of $562,232,507 and current liabilities of $121,358,042 at the end of 1929. Total book assets showed an increase of approximately $6,000,000 over the previous year, amounting to $2,394,544,811.

The corporation's gross property investment account increased $124,510,991 to $175,030,528, partly through the acquisition of the plants and business of the Atlas Portland Cement Company, Columbia Steel Corporation and the Oil Well Supply Company, acquired by purchase during the year and paid for by issue of common stock.

General Time Buys Electric Clock Firm

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 16.—Sale of the Hamilton-Sangamo Corporation, manufacturers of electric clocks, to the General Time Instruments Corporation was announced by R. E. Lamphier, president of the Sangamo Electric Company.

The Hamilton-Sangamo Corporation was formed three years ago by interests represented in the Hamilton Watch Company and the Sangamo Electric Corporation.

The General Time Instruments Corporation already had extensive interests in the clock industry through its holdings in the Western Clock Company of La Salle, Ill., and in the Seth Thomas concern, eastern clock manufacturers.

January Motor Car Exports Decrease

WASHINGTON, March 16.—January exports of automotive products are valued at $15,480,487, against $16,413,129 in December and $13,166,674 in January, 1930, the Commerce Department reports.

Reduced shipments of passenger cars and trucks amounting to $7,127,056 in the month, as compared with $8,841,560 for December and $11,563,671 for January, 1930, accounted for the lowered valuation in January shipments.

DETROIT, March 16.—Returns from 20 states show registrations of 30,526 new passenger cars in February against 44,867 in January, an increase of 13.6 per cent. The same states in February, 1930, registered 75,198 cars.

Columbia Oil 1930 Income is $2,703,225

NEW YORK, March 16.—The first annual statement of Columbia Oil and Gasoline Corporation, formed last year to consummate the plan of reorganization adopted by Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation for segregation of the oil and gasoline properties of Columbia system from its public utilities, showed consolidated net income of $2,703,225 for 1930.

Jenny Wynne Consents to Become Larry's Wife

CHAPTER XXVII.

Spring was coming to Westwood, veiling the bare trees in a pale and glamorous green, spring flowers bloomed in the borders and there were great Russian violets, single heads of purple fragrance, in the hothouses. Mary Lou had graduated from the mild and mislcadingly named "Flapper," for Lorrimer, despite her protests, had bought her a new saddle horse, all her own, a delicious, velvet-nosed, large-eyed creature, with a coat of polished mahogany, named, for no good reason, "Lady Bountiful." And he was teaching Mary Lou to jump, down in the big paddock.

He himself was going to a Connecticut flying field several times a week and flying, with a pilot he had known in the old days. He was once again a student flier looking forward to the day when he would solo. He was finding great exhilaration in it, and genuine happiness.

"Everything's different," he told Mary Lou; "the ships are different, and I've forgotten more than I ever learned! But I can learn again," he determined.

Jenny Accepts Larry

On his flying days his mother—and Mary Lou as well—knew no peace until his car drove up to the door and honked its gay greeting to them both. He was driving a car again, another good sign. But neither woman gave him any sign of their fear and their loss of serenity while he was absent from them. He had to try his wings again. They had made up their minds to that. And—he was happy. That was all that mattered.

He'd been away from them for more than a day also, that spring, going up to the Adirondacks to see Mac and coming back full of splendid reports of that staunch little fellow's grit and good progress. For Mac was going to get well, regardless, if only to show his gratitude to the man who had given him such an incentive in life, again.

The English revue came to town and Larry was busier than a one-armed paper hanger. He rushed hither and yon and announced that he was certainly making good, having accomplished the feat of getting the revue in every paper in town for six consecutive days. And coming out to Westwood, in a blaze of self-glorification, he was so entranced with his success, and the further exciting fact that he had sold two full length stories to "big time" magazines, that he rushed over to see Jenny, found her out in her kennels administering first aid to a sick Chow pup, and proposed to her then and there in an atmosphere of disinfectant and dog!

And, possibly because he said firmly: "Nor will I take 'no' for an answer. I'm not foolin,' woman!" Jenny accepted him.

They weren't, they said, after breaking the news to the unstartled Wynnes, and coming to Westwood House to further spread the tidings, they weren't, they repeated, getting married for a year or so yet; "although," said Jenny, "I don't as a rule believe in long engagements." And in that year Larry expected, or rather decided, to establish himself as a free lance writer, a novelist and a playwright. He thought, however, after a little chat with Mr Wynne, that he'd manage to hang on to his newspaper job for a time, just in case editors didn't see things his way, every time! And then, at the end of that rosy, indefinite period, he and Jenny would live, oh, not in Greenwich Village, but maybe on Brooklyn Heights, in one of those converted brownstone houses—"Converted to what?" asked Lorrimer, laughing—and Jenny would learn to type his manuscripts, as became an author's wife!

Mingled Emotions

"Well, certified milk, then, and honey, and brown bread, and for tomorrow's dinner a dry crust. That's the life! For I won't," he said standing before the Westwood fireplace, and looking menacing, "for I won't live on your father's money. Not that he isn't a darned good scout at that!" admitted Larry.

"How about Mother's? Mother was a Lee," said Jenny, with an elfin grin. "Lee flour, you know. Self-rising."

"Nor on Mother's either!" answered Larry firmly.

"Well," said Jenny with a sigh, "I'll supply the jam on the dry crust. After all, Larry, I've some of my own!"

So that was that. Mary Lou and Margaret and Lorrimer viewed the beglamoured, ridiculous, dear couple with mingled emotions. Envy was uppermost, as far as Mary Lou and Lorrimer were concerned. He said so, later:

And as she didn't answer, he urged, low, compellingly:

"I—I'm not breaking any promises, but how long are you going to keep me waiting—how long?" he asked, again.

To her utter consternation, amazement and anguish she began to cry, quite simply and heart-brokenly, like a child. Her little face was all distorted, and the big tears ran unchecked down her pink cheeks.

They were, luckily, quite alone, in the morning room, the day after Jenny's engagement had been thus informally announced. Lorrimer was instantly contrite.

"Darling, don't! What is it? I didn't mean to hurt you. I can't stand seeing you cry—"

Recklessly, for all his promises, he took her in his arms, and she yielded briefly to the blessed comfort of his strength about her and his lips on her hair, leaning her abased head against him and sobbing, quite quietly, but as if she couldn't stop.

"I haven't seen you cry," he mused, "since—since the day you came back to me. And I haven't heard you sob like that, Delight, since the day I left you to go back to the front—"

Larry Meets Actress

"I'm sorry to be such an idiot," she murmured.

"Was it the fall this morning? You didn't lie to me when you said you weren't hurt?" he asked anxiously. "Were you pretty well shaken up—shall we have Doc in to look you over?"

"No, I didn't lie. I'm quite all right," she said and touched his coat sleeve with her finger tips and tried to smile.

She'd taken a tumble that morning. Lady Bountiful having been more capricious than usual. But she hadn't been hurt, not a bit. She had clambed back into the saddle and dared the beautiful animal to do that to her again! No, her fall hadn't shaken her, but her emotions had.

Shortly before the opening night of the imported English revue, Larry Mitchell was sitting in an apartment, in a small hotel in the West Forties, interviewing, for publicity's sweet sake, a young English woman who was billed as Diana Hackett, but who, for the purposes of that publicity was to be rumored as "Lady Diana," the daughter of a belted earl.

Miss Hackett—or was it Lady Hackett—Larry wasn't sure, not being quite up to the etiquette of titles—shared the apartment with several of her sister thespians. But she was alone in it with Larry at the moment, a very self-possessed, very good-looking young English woman, but rather hard of eye and with a few delicate facial lines which her clever make-up could not conceal. Her voice was pleasant, rather light and heavily colored with the accent known as "English."

Her story was smooth enough. Her father and mother were dead, the family estate had to be sold. No, she'd rather not use the title on the program but of course if it leaked out, as it were, it wouldn't do any harm, would it? Yes, her part was quite good and she had a song called "Whose little girl friend are you?" which had been especially written for her by the composer. She was 23. "Is that so?" asked Larry. "Not by seven years, your ladyship!" But he asked it mutely.

Tea was served. Lady Diana carried on. Her favorite flowers, "orchids, or perhaps you'd better say daisies, it's more unusual," she said. Her favorite fur, sables; her most adored jewel, the pearl. And so on, ad infinitum.

When that was over and Larry had quite a pocketful of notes he decided suddenly that he liked her. No matter how absurd the statements she made, her blue eyes danced. She reminded him of someone he knew, very faintly. He couldn't place the resemblance. She was small and her thick hair was frankly hennaed and her figure full but very pretty.

"How do you like the States," he asked her, mechanically, and she answered, quite as automatically:

"I adore them. Too divine. Your men are so attractive and your girls are so very pretty and well dressed."

Larry wrote that down, and then he laughed. He couldn't help it, and, after a moment, Lady Diana laughed, too.

"It's a lot of eye-wash,'" said she, and laughed again.

"I know. But I won't give you away!" Larry assured her.

"I don't know any attractive men, as yet," she announced with a frivolous, rather coming-on look, "except you. I've been bored to death."

"Would you dine tonight," he asked her, "with a humble press agent?"

He was sorry for her. There was something forlorn about her. And it was all business after all, aside from a natural human impulse of pity. Jenny would understand. And perhaps he'd get some really interesting items out of this girl, something that would make a real sensation instead of the usual banal statements, most of them untrue.

DAILY TRUE STORY— 'Poor Kid'

"Things go wrong at the shop today, Mary?" her sister asked.

"Oh, all right enough,"

"Something's wrong. I can always tell when there are red spots on your cheeks and you look as though you were either going to cry or swear."

"Some day," she said, "someone will call me 'poor kid' just once too often and I'll scratch a road map all over her face!"

"Oh, forget it, Mary," her sister said, but she felt sorry for Mary. She knew just what the trouble was.

"I'm just out of luck, that's all. I know I can never wear those swell skinny models. I bet you if it was stylish to be plump and full of curves I'd a grown up as skinny as a beanpole!"

Girl Despondent

"Oh, forget it, Mary," her sister repeated.

"When any of the girls get a chance at some new model dirt cheap, they're all the kind I couldn't get into. The plump sizes I can wear are never overstocked. And to make it worse, either Gussie Schwartz or Mayme Weintraub or some of them look at me and giggle and say, 'Poor kid.'"

"Oh, forget—"

"Please—for Pete's sake, it's true. I know I'm fat. Lay off saying 'Forget it.' How can I forget it?"

"Anyway, May, you got a swell complexion and Jim says he'd rather marry a girl like you than an army of those toothpick models."

"I know my complexion's O. K. I don't have to support no drug store, that's a fact. But you can't slip a perfect sixteen model dress on over a perfect complexion, can you?"

"For—er—for goodness sake"—her sister almost said "Forget it" again—"why worry? You got a swell job, you got good health."

"And no boy friends!" Mary added, bitterly.

"Some are nice. No need to tell you I don't want a nice boy friend, you know better. And no need to say I'm all happy and contented when you know darn well I want a nice husband and a good home."

"You'd be crazy or a liar if you said you didn't, but don't worry—Mr. Right Man always comes along."

"Yeah? To push me across the street when I get old enought to live in a wheel chair."

Mary's sister didn't argue any more. She knew that these spells were rare and that next morning Mary would be as gay and laughing as ever.

In the big establishment of Manz & Co. there were probably 20 models. Among them was only one so-called "stout" model, Mrs. Holt. She had been there longer than Mary. If Mrs. Holt, a widow, ever married again, Mary would be given her place.

One day Mrs. Carlin, in charge of the models, came back inquiring for Mrs. Holt. She hadn't come in.

Mrs. Carlin had no more diplomacy than nothing at all.

"There's a buyer out there, Mary," she said, "who's a scream. He says all our models are for girls and he wants some women's models, too. I tried to tell him that women, from school girls to grandmothers, wore these boyish models, but he's stubborn. He's from th' big Martin Chain out West with headquarters in Dallas. Mrs. Kellogg always used to buy for 'em, but he says they sent him on this year."

"Yeah?" said Mary.

"Hurry—"

Gentleman Pleased

And so they took Mary to the little room where the girls donned and doffed model dresses day in and day out.

So Mary went out to where the man was sitting and walked up and down the strip of carpet. She could feel her cheeks burn. If she were slight like other girls—but she was quite conscious that she was the possessor of a truly feminine figure, hips, bust, well rounded shoulders and arms that divulged no spear-point elbow bones.

The man, she noticed, was around 30. He wore a blue suit and smoked a cigar, although he put down the cigar when she came out.

"That a dress!" he said.

"Yes, Mr.—er—" Mrs. Carlin hesitated.

"Roberts."

"Yes, Mr. Roberts," Mrs. Carlin agreed.

"And, no offense meant, that's a mighty pretty little lady in the dress."

"I thank you, Miss," Mr. Roberts said, getting up and bowing from the waist.

He seemed so sincere that Mary nodded and smiled at him.

The next day Mrs. Carlin rushed in.

"He's back—he wants more dresses—and he wants you to model them," she told Mary.

Mary did so, but she detected more interest in her than in the dresses from Mr. Roberts, so she gave him a rather cold reception.

"Say, Miss, have you got a mother or sister?" Mr. Roberts asked her, suddenly.

"Both, only my mother lives up country and my sister is married—why?"

"I'd like to take you out tonight—and so you won't get me wrong, I want you to take someone along."

"Thanks, I don't go out."

"He works night in a press room—thanks just the same, Mr. Roberts."

He didn't say any more, Mrs. Carlin overheard and told the girls.

Mary Surprised

"You was a fool—you should have gone out with him, he'd make you a nice present," they told Mary.

She was smiling as she got home, thinking of the fun she would have when she told her sister about this Mr. Roberts.

But when she stepped into the little living-room, there was Mr. Roberts himself.

"Of all the nerve!" Mary cried.

"You didn't think I'd lose you, did you, Miss Jackson?"

"Don't be rude to my guest, Mary. I've invited him to dinner!"

"Guest—you know him?"

"Oh, yes."

Mr. Roberts remained for dinner and Mary learned many things, among them that while her sister knew Mr. Roberts, she hadn't known him until he called and asked all about Mary and said that he had fallen in love with her.

Mr. Roberts remained in town a month. He convinced Mary that he loved her and that she ought to marry him.

She did.

Mary sent the girls at the shop a picture of her beautiful home and wrote on it:

"My home. Best regards from the 'Poor Kid.'"

Political Cowards

Opposition to Repeal of the Blue Law Is Not So Formidable as Some of the Legislators Imagine.

The impression prevails that the Blue Law will not be repealed at this session of the Legislature.

If that is true, the failure of the lawmakers to act will be due to political cowardice. They are said to be afraid of the coterie of tyrannical bigots who object even to a popular referendum on the subject of Sunday restrictions.

It is up to the advocates of Blue Law repeal to show the Legislature, at the public hearing tomorrow on the Musmanno Home Rule Sunday bill, that the fanatics who oppose innocent amusements do not represent the people, but only an unfair minority.

It is conceded that the people of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia favor a more liberal policy, but some of the timid legislators think the rest of the state is opposed to a change. That is an erroneous belief.

After the Sun-Telegraph had proved by a postcard poll of the registered voters that the citizens of Pittsburgh want the Blue Law repealed, the defenders of the statute let it be known that they felt that rural sentiment was different. The poll was accordingly extended to every borough and township in Allegheny County. Now parts of the outlying sections of the county are about as rural in their environment and outlook as any sections of Pennsylvania; yet the people in these farming communities felt just about the same in regard to the Blue Law as the people of the city; and so expressed themselves.

The Sun-Telegraph believes that if the question of changing the Blue Law were to be submitted to the people of other counties a majority would be found in favor of a change.

But whether they are or not, they should not be allowed to impose senseless restrictions on the people of this community. The Musmanno bill is eminently fair because it allows every community to decide for itself whether or not a dismal Sunday shall be enforced.

A Remarkable Contrast

School Board's Zeal to Protect Public From Extortionate Charges Is Unlike Council's Attitude.

The Rooney bill, making membership on the Board of Public Education an elective, salaried office, is reported to have a chance of passage.

It behooves the taxpayers of Pittsburgh to protest to their representatives in the Legislature against the enactment of the measure.

Theoretically, of course, it is desirable that the people should choose their representatives on the governing bodies directly. But under existing conditions, with a selfish machine in power, which dictates nominations and controls elections, it is better to leave well enough alone.

The taxpayers need go no further, in seeking a reason for opposing the change, than to contrast the attitude that the non-political school board has assumed in reference to contracts with that shown by Council with its "mayor's majority" of professional politicians.

The school board's zeal to protect the public from what it considered unreasonable charges has been remarkable. Time and again it has rejected all bids for work on new schoolhouses on the ground that even the lowest was excessive. How refreshing such a position is, in comparison with the conduct of Council in permitting hundreds of thousands of dollars of the people's money to be spent on contracts for which competitive bids were not even solicited!

If the Rooney bill becomes law Pittsburgh is likely to have on the school board men of the same caliber and ideals as the seven councilmen who have been resisting so strenuously the demand for an open inquiry into the Department of Supplies scandal. That would be a serious misfortune.

Care of the Veterans

The unhappy plight of many of Pennsylvania's disabled veterans of the World War is again brought to public attention by the news that Senator Reed has called on Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of the Veterans' Bureau, to request that additional hospital facilities be supplied in Pennsylvania for disabled ex-service men.

Senator Reed deserves praise for these efforts. The situation of many of the disabled veterans is pitiful. There are not enough accommodations for them in the hospitals at Aspinwall and Coatesville, and the consequence is that some have been placed in hospitals and even in almshouses in distant states. Thus, in addition to the affliction due to their disability, they suffer by being separated from their families and friends.

Congress at the session just ended made partial relief from this condition possible, but left the expenditure of the funds, to some extent, to the discretion of Gen. Hines. Senator Reed has proposed to him that additional beds be provided at Aspinwall and Coatesville and a third hospital be established in the central part of the state.

It is to be hoped Gen. Hines will find it possible to comply with this reasonable request.

The veterans should be cared for in hospitals near enough to their homes to permit their families to visit them often.

A Penalty on Thrift

Senator Harris Makes a Sensible Proposal in Advocating Repeal of Tax on Savings Accounts.

Senator Frank J. Harris is championing a commendable bill in the proposal to abolish the four-mill tax on savings accounts.

There is no law to enforce collection of the tax, and many persons evade it. Honest persons file the required return and make the payment, while others get out of it by one subterfuge or another. This in itself raises a question as to the wisdom of the tax, and there are other reasons, even more impressive, why it should be abolished.

For one thing, it imposes a penalty on thrift; for the persons who put their money in savings accounts are for the most part women and children who are trying to get ahead, and not people of means.

The Arresting Hand

(Copyright, 1931.)

The Twentieth Amendment to the Federal Constitution is the arresting hand that would stop the exploitation of child labor—if the several states would shake off their lethargy and ratify it.

Five progressive states, headed by California, have adopted the amendment. Six others, headed by New York and New Jersey, have taken no action.

Such action by the states might shame the Federal Government to give to Education the same encouragement that it now gives to the protection of cattle and pigs—by creating a DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION WITH A SECRETARY OF EDUCATION IN THE PRESIDENTIAL CABNET.

* * *

"Rose-petals-Andy," who never waited to get untangled from one woman before getting all wound up with another, who never saw the net until he had both feet in it, and who believed everything a woman told him.

* * *

It is amazing what a woman can make a man believe—if he happens to want to believe it. No matter how many times he has been fooled, he is always ripe for the next woman. In fact, the worse he has been stung, the softer and more pliable he is in the hands of any other woman who will sympathize with him and soothe his wounded vanity.

No matter what his mirror tells him, any little, limpid-eyed thing with a lisp and a honeyed line can convince him that his bald-spot is invisible, and that the Prince Charming of her visions is a portly gentleman with a triple chin and a touch of asthma.

* * *

Any fairly youngish woman, who can squeeze out a few tears and gaze imploringly at a jury, can convince 12 good men and true that she didn't shoot her husband—that "the gun just went off in her hands" when the "brute" refused her a new ermine coat.

* * *

Of course there is nothing easier for the office vamp than to persuade a man that he is "unappreciated," and that SHE understands him far better than the woman who has been curing his headaches, listening to his troubles and putting a hot-water bottle to his feet for the last twenty years. It doesn't take a vamp, the office charwoman could do it!

And, no matter how often he may have loved until he "lost," the next little platinum-blonde, who pats his cheek with one hand while she reaches for his wallet with the other, and tells him what a nice, big generous, wonderful man he is can have him blushing with pleased surprise.

* * *

Any woman can make a man feel sorry for himself—even when he doesn't know why. Because feeling "abused" is a man's pet luxury. Any woman can persuade a man that he looks like Lord Byron in a soft collar, like Gene Tunney in a bathing suit, like Lewis Stone in evening clothes or like Bobby Jones in white plus-fours. Even when he looks more like Mr. Jiggs or Barney Google.

* * *

And, as for making a man believe that you are in LOVE with him, that is just confirming his secret conviction! It's perfectly natural, isn't it? Well then! How can he doubt that a woman loves him—when she TELLS him so!

* * *

Oh yes, every man has a trusting heart where women are concerned. That's why so many of them, like Andy Brown, rush right out of one woman's clutches, into another woman's arms.

SCRAPPING A GREAT THEORY

By Archibald Henderson

The history of science is a history of comprehensive and plausible generalizations. After the generalization, decades and sometimes centuries are consumed in working out the details and consequences of the generalization or comprehensive theory. In the course of time, it may be, new phenomena of nature are discovered, unknown to the original propounder of the theory, which do not conform to the theory and cannot be made to fit into it. Two avenues are then open to science: either to modify the theory in such a way as to include all the original facts embraced by the theory, and the new facts which do not conform to it; or else, to scrap the theory and replace it with an entirely new and different theory.

No cosmogony, or theory of the beginning and course of evolution of the cosmos, has proved entirely satisfactory. The most successful ever devised was that advanced by Pierre Simon Laplace, which held sway as the "nebular hypothesis" until quite recent years. The tendency among astronomers is to reject it in favor of a new theory advanced by Chamberlin and Moulton under the name of the "planetesimal hypothesis," with certain modifications known as the "tidal theory" put forward by Darwin, Jeffreys and Jeans.

What are the grounds for the rejection of the famous "nebular hypothesis," which held the field for so long, and had come to be accepted almost as "scientific gospel?" To understand the hitch, we shall set down the fundamental features of the nebular hypothesis as outlined by Harlan True Stetson in the excellent work, "Man and the Stars." The following astronomical facts are consonant with the nebular hypothesis:

1. All the planets revolve about the sun in the same direction, counter-clockwise.

2. The outermost planet revolves the most slowly; the innermost the most rapidly, the speed increasing with decreasing distance in accordance with Kepler's third law.

3. The planes of the orbits of all the major planets lie nearly in the same general plane as that of the earth's orbit, the ecliptic.

4. The planets, with one possible exception, rotate on their axes in the same direction as they revolve about the sun, counter-clockwise.

5. The satellites of the planets, excepting the moon, are small in comparison with their primaries; and, so far as was known to Laplace, revolve about their respective planets in this same counter-clockwise direction as the planets themselves rotate and revolve.

6. The sun, a thousand times more massive than any planet, is still a hot, gaseous sphere, and rotates on its axis counter-clockwise with a period shorter than that of the innermost planets.

Moreover, it is believed that the ring feature of the whole nebular hypothesis was suggested to Laplace by the ring of Saturn, a cosmic residue of a former stage in the evolutionary process by which rings, thrown off by revolving masses, become planets.

Many discoveries made since Laplace's time refute his theory. Dynamics now teaches that material scattered widely in a ring will never by its own gravitation gather itself together into a planet. Four satellites of Uranus are found to be going the wrong way to suit Laplace. One of the two inner moons of Mars is revolving about the planet faster than the planet rotates upon its axis; and this won't suit Laplace. Satellites of Jupiter and even minor planets go the wrong way round; and even the orbits of many small planets have their planes too badly tilted to suit Laplace.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Does it pay to help people?

That depends on the kind of help—

I am sure that much of our so-called "help" is extremely harmful and that with all our highly organized charity, we often omit the most vital sort of assistance.

There's one sort of help we nearly always fail to give, yet it should come first of all—FAITH.

We give people food, clothes and money and endless advice—we find jobs and homes for them—but how often do we make them feel that we have any faith in them?

How often do we do reverence to that pride, that self-respect which cries for recognition in even the most degraded human hearts?

How often do we preface our charitable act by the decent statement: "I believe in you."

That's one sort of help which we don't give, yet I'm sure that it's the most potent and necessary form of help. For the greatest rehabilitary force in any human being's life is his pride. His pride needs recognition before his body needs clothes or his purse needs money. And even though you give clothes and money if you have left that pride naked and in the dust, you have wasted your charity.

Does it pay to give advice?

I've had a good deal of experience upon which to base my answer to that question. I have been giving both written and oral advice for many years in the course of my work. Very often that advice has been supplemented by personal co-operation which has lasted over weeks or years. And yet I doubt if one person out of a thousand can be helped by advice.

Most people want advice and request it with every evidence of sincerity. There are many reasons for this. An advice-getting orgy is most gratifying to the egotism of both the advisee and advisor. It is also a stimulating and exciting way of spending one's time and emotion. But having received the advice, most of us fall right back into the same old rut. For it isn't advice we need. It's a new set of vertebrae. And maybe funnybone.

Does it pay to give sympathy in the usual sense of condolence? Only in very small doses. Such sympathy is a drug. It may be wisely used to elevate the worst pangs of suffering but it can only relieve—it won't cure. Sooner or later the sufferer must buck up and face the situation—perform an operation on his life or cleanse it of its infection. Prolonged sympathy won't help him in this task. It will only weaken him. Believe in a man, but show him that you feel he can make good. Don't be sorry for him or help him to be sorry for himself.

There's another kind of sympathy which really is a spiritual partnership. You can't give too much of that.

Does it pay to give money? I don't know what your experience has been in this respect, but mine has been about 99 per cent. BAD. I'm one of those people who like to give money. There's nothing honorable about that. There's really a selfish pleasure in it for me. I'd like to imagine that I'm doing people lots of good. But I have come to realize, most reluctantly, that I'm doing no such thing. In the vast majority of cases the money does no good whatever, and the needy one is harmed more than helped by such financial interference. The thing that landed him in his plight was not really lack of money. It was laziness or greediness or egotism, or some other form of human cussedness, and he'll never get out of his plight until he wins the fight over the thing that is defeating him. In most cases money simply interferes with that fight.

After all, the good old maxim held a lot of wisdom. "Help a man to help himself"—that's the only kind of help that counts.

Wise Words

The gain of lying is nothing else but not to be trusted of any, nor to be believed when we say the truth.—Raleigh.

What must be shall be; and that which is a necessity to him that struggles is little more than choice to him that is willing.—Seneca.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

So in the End

Others had brought her
Ruby and pearl,
He only taught her
How sea-waves swirl;
How the foam, lifting,
Whitens the shore,
How the foam, drifting,
Floats out once more.

Some came, revealing
Earth's garnish light;
With him, the wheeling
Stars through the night.
He was the friend she Trusted always,
So in the end she

Others had given
Gauds through the years,
But he had shriven
Her soul of fears.

Text For Today The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple—Psalms, cxix:130.

THINK IT OVER

Drawn by Hal Coffman.

The moon is millions of miles away, yet the children who cry for it are no more foolish than the couple pictured here.

Not content with a modest home, enough to eat, enough to wear and enough for reasonable enjoyment, they must grasp everything the neighbors have—and more.

It is a common American trait—and a useful one if not carried to extremes. The desire for something better is the force that inspires progress.

But it is important to climb upward carefully or the ladder you climb on may topple out from under you.

That happened to many last year, and now they are farther down than the ones who watched their step.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 16.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Stirred out at dawn by the door pounding of a swizzled roysterer on way home from a party and unable to sleep again set off with the dogs to walk. And in Fifty-eighth street came upon Earl Carroll, unable to sleep either. So we to Grand Central for breakfast and he has the grandest sense of humor I know.

Home and there awaited an earnest young man in confusion over his destiny, wanting to write although studying engineering. And very gravely I told him that first of all a writer should be hospitable to all manifestations of life and mere writing was mostly carpentry, which I believe.

At dusk with my wife to the R. Longs and Jim Quirk and his beautiful lady May Allison there, and all so flattering about my great coat that before departing I blurted out the price. So all the way home cursing myself for a loose tongued nit wit and later to the Mayfair dance.

* * *

A picture in Punch inspires the month's best giggle. A stiffly prim Cockney couple with two long-faced daughters are celebrating New Year's eve in a middle-class cafe. All about them is merry-making. Says the mother to a daughter: "Twelve o'clock has gone. You may now throw a bun at your father."

* * *

A penurious pair of New Yorkers keep in daily touch with each other by telephone free. The husband is in California, the wife in New York. At midnight he puts in a call. If all is well, she replies: "Mrs. Jones is not here." If she must talk to him, she tells the operator: "Mrs. Jones will return in a half hour." And he calls then.

The Rialto has two women dramatic critics—Alison Smith and Baird Leonard. It is reported that when another metropolitan critic resigns this spring his place will be filled by a former actress.

Ann Pennington, who usually confines artistic endeavor to wiggles, talked in her play this season. Cast as a simpering dumbbell—the party girl type—she is asked where she lives. "I don't really know," she lisps, "I meet so many men."

* * *

Miss Pennington has literally danced through life. All her spare moments are spent practicing new steps. If she goes to a play, she will retire to a dark corner at intermissions and toddle into her dance.

He is one of those ponderous pachyderms whose half lidded eyes seem to say, "I've seen the world and am bored to extinction." I sat next to him at a musical revue and he laughed himself silly over one of those early '90 traveling-salesman-and-crowded-farm-house jokes. And blooey went another illusion.

Don Clarke breezed by awhile ago with the latest tabloid headline: "Thugs Grab Kale; Scram!" And on top of that Henry Sell wanders in and suggests going to Moscow for May Day. No wonder I never get anything done around this hatchery. Time continues to fly. Lack-a-day! What to do! Today an egg, tomorrow a feather bed!

Amon Carter tells about the colored boy who went to deposit $100 in a small town bank. After accepting it the receiving teller jerked down the curtain of his cage. The Negro inquired the trouble and was told the bank had been ordered closed. "I'll declare to goodness," he observed, "that's the first time I ever had one bust smack in my face."

For another one of those no reasons whatever, it occurs to me I never knew a person named Max who did not have a quick-acting, trigger mind. And all the Pauls I know are fine guys.

Isn't It So?

Beware of the dead beat. He usually comes to life.

Wealth doesn't always bring happiness, even to those who are rich in experience.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

An "inferiority complex" is a common expression nowadays for those who seem to lack the courage to forge ahead.

You do not feel so chagrined over errors on your part if you can charge it to the advice of So-and-So.

Often in your place of business you ask the advice of those you are holding positions beneath you.

This is not so much for the purpose of gaining information as to shift some part of the blame if the wrong decision is made.

You have not studied things out and relied enough on your own judgment in regard to your work to the extent of being positive in your knowledge and clean-cut in action.

So you satisfy yourself with a smattering of the things a person in your position should know instead of devoting yourself to research that counts.
